Belief in Paris That Italy Will Agree to Compromise on Fiume

London, May 2.—The Rumanian army of invasion in Hungary, with King Ferdinand at its head, has entered Budapest, said a Central News dispatch from Basle this afternoon.

Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Paris, May 2—That Italy will accept a compromise by accepting Fiume as a free port was the opinion expressed in British official circles today. President Wilson suggested that Fiume be made a free port in his recent manifesto on the Italian situation.

Rome, May 2.—U. S. Ambassador Page held a lengthy conference at the foreign office today with Premier Orlando and Baron Sonnino. The Fiume controversy was discussed.

Rome, May 2.—The news agency Italia Neuva declares it understands that the Italian peace delegation has received assuranves from Paris that the conflict over Fiume and Dalmatian territory has been settled in accordance with Italy's desires.

(No confirmation of this report has been received from Paris, though Paris dispatches represent the Italians as in a more conciliatory mood.

Germany Must Pay $25,000,000,000 in 50 Years

By International News Service.

London, May 2.—The total indemnity that Germany must pay to the allies is $25,000,000,000, but the Berlin government will be given fifty years in which to make the final payments, said a Paris dispatch to the Post today.

A fifth of the total sum—$5,000,000,000—must be paid before 1921. It will require about half of this amount to feed Germany and maintain the troops in the occupied zone.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR VIOLATING FOOD LAWS

Defendants Appeal Punishment for Having Bad Candy and Ketchup

Judge Dowd conducted a brief pure-food session in Municipal Court today, when candy, ketchup and pork pie were under consideration. The only casualty was Inspector George McCaffrey, who opened a can of ketchup on order of the court and was well smeared for his pains.

Louis Glickstein, a jobber in candy was sentenced to four months in the House of Correction, and Joseph Rosen, who, it was charged, had unfit candy in his possession with intent to sell, was sentenced to two months. Both appealed. Inspector Linehan of the board of health told the court that live mice jumped from the candy barrels when they were opened, and that human hair, dirt and worms had been found in the 4,800 pounds of candy examined. Two boxes, displayed in court, convinced the judge.

The Standard Grocery Company appealed a fine of $100 imposed for having sold fifteen dozen gallon cans of decomposed ketchup to Fred L. Greaves, proprietor of the Union Oyster House, who was fined $50 for having the ketchup in his possession. One can went off with an alarming bang when Inspector Linehan opened it in court.

"That's enough," said Judge Dowd.

Rosoff and Litschitz, who conduct a delicatessen store on Washington street, South End, were allowed to plead nolo when they were charged with having sold pork pie unfit for food to Emma Nye of Carver street. Responsibility for the pie will be traced to New York, from where it was received.

BIG SLUMP IN V-LOAN DRIVE

Day's Subscriptions in New England Fall to $13,000,000; Total in District $158,000,000

New England lags, Boston sags, and the whole country is making a poor showing in the Victory Liberty Loan campaign. New England, after a bad slump for the tenth working day, must raise more than $27,000,000 daily for the remaining eight days of the drive, as it is nearly 60 per cent. behind realization of its quota.

There was an atmosphere of deepest gloom about New England headquarters today, and the situation, admittedly serious, calls for the expenditure of every ounce of energy remaining to the loan workers.

The nation-wide showing is much poorer than was made in the proportionate time in either the Third or Fourth Loan drives.

Only $13,068,000 was raised in the New England district on the tenth day, less than half the average required to reach the top. Only 42.2 per cent. of the $375,000,000 quota, or $158,259,000, has been raised to date.

The city of Boston is nearly 10 per cent. behind the average of this district, raising only $2,805,000 on the tenth day, making the Hub total $32,989,250. The total number of indi-

Music was by the Navy Yard Band. Webster made several crayon sketches in connection with his loan talk.

Explosives Found in Suspect's Office in New York; Baldwin Held on Technical Charge

By International News Service.

New York, May 2—Arrest of a man giving his name as "Dr. Charles L. Baldwin, of the Baldwin Medical Institute," was the first positive development today in the federal and police investigation of the attempt to assassinate more than a score of prominent persons throughout the United States by means of bombs sent through the mails.

Bomb squad detectives found at Baldwin's "institute" two packages, each holding six bottles believed to contain very dangerous explosives. The labels indicated that inside the bottles were quantities of "TNT" nitro-glycerine, smokeless powder and nitrate o fammonia. The bottles were turned over to the city bureau of combustibles to determine whether they really held explosives.

Baldwin explained that the bottles were given him by a man who lives on Chestnut street, Philadelphia. He said this man asked him to keep them until he returned. The police are keeping the man's name secret.

Baldwin was arraigned on the charge of violating the Harrison anti-

He told four conflicting stories in an ante-mortem statement.

"Shimmy Shake" in Court to Prove Its Propriety

Is it immoral to "shake the shimmy"? Are the devotees of the newest of the new jazz dances guilty of an immoral dance when they perform it?

The Watch and Ward Society says "Yes" to both questions. Joseph Chouinard, proprietor of a dance hall at Beverly, says "No"—most emphatically "No."

Judge Sears of Salem is to act as a court of last resort. The "shimmy" is to be danced before him in the court at Salem on Thursday next. The judge will then decide whether the "shimmy" is to go down in terpsichorean history with the fox trot, the one-step and other perfectly proper "jazzes," or whether it is to be taboo in good society.

Chouinard was arrested at Beverly for conducting an "improper dance hall."

TAKEN FOR AUTO THEFT AFTER CHASE

Young Man Leaps From Car at Sight of Officers, but Is Captured

Following a spirited chase, watched by thousands, Wilbur Robie, twenty years old, of Chandler street, was caught on Boylston street today by Inspectors McCarthy, Dorsey and Haggerty. He is accused of stealing an automobile from the State Hospital at Palmer, where he had been employed.

The police say that Robie, who formerly lived in Framingham, took the car from the State Hospital garage, cut a number from each of the license plates and painted out the initials "M. S. H." from the side of the car. Then, they say, he drove it to Boston and attempted to sell it on Washington street near Avery.

When he saw the policemen approaching, Robie drove the car up Avery street, leaped out, tore off his overcoat and jacket and tried to get away.

CHARGES NEGLECT OF HOUSE DUTY

Speaker Denounces Absent Members for "Disgraceful" Conduct

Speaker Joseph E. Warner left his rostrum today and from the floor of the Massachusetts House of Representatives flayed the House membership for chronic neglect of the public's business in what he said was "a disgraceful and debasing fashion."

Convicted Men Appeal Sentence; Machine Gun Threat by Curtis for Future Disorders

Jail sentences were imposed on the first of the alleged Roxbury rioters to face Judge Hayden in Roxbury Municipal Court today. Three men were sentenced to a month each in the House of Correction, and two others to two months each in the same institution.

A soldier, Edward H. Coyle, charged with assaulting one of the paraders during the trouble in Humboldt avenue, was discharged after the police had testified that he helped them restore order and break up the mob.

Appeals were taken in the cases of all the defendants found guilty, and counsel for them intimated dissatisfaction with the bail demanded.

Ernest Greenberg of Watertown and Arnold Janeton of Arlington were sentenced to two months each in the House of Correction for their connection with the May Day fight. John Buchaw, Charles Buchaw and Alexander Bersin were sentenced to one month each. The persons discharged were in every case able to show either that they were in the riot against their wishes, being caught in the crowd, or that they were assisting the police.

Among those discharged were Cornelius J. Callahan, Frank H. Purdy and Richard J. Lynch. Germans to Be Given Fortnight to Consider Terms of Peace Treaty

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, May 2.—Once again President Wilson has been outvoted in an attempt to secure publicity in the peace conference proceedings. The American delegates asked that the newspaper correspondents be allowed to see the handing of the peace treaty to the German delegates. But when the matter was taken up by the big three Premier Clemenceau would not consent and was backed up by Premier Lloyd George, President Wilson remaining in the minority.

As a result it will be impossible to secure the slightest publicity over this proceeding.

It is now understood that when the treaty is turned over to the German envoys they will be given a fortnight to consider it and to submit in writing any changes they may desire.

It was believed today that the treaty terms would not be in the hands of the Germans before Monday, although it was suggested yesterday that this proceeding might come either on Saturday or Sunday.

MAY SIGN BY MAY 25.

The credentials of the German peace delegation, headed by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, German foreign minister, were formally handed to the allies Thursday afternoon, the session lasting only a few minutes. It took place at Versailles.

Should the Germans be given two weeks for consideration of the pact and should it be presented to them on Monday, this means that the final stage of the peace proceedings, so far as Germany is concerned, would be reached on or about May 19. A few days would be given for consideration of any alterations the Germans might suggest. The signatures probably will be placed upon the treaty about May 25 or 26.

It is unlikely that the treaty the Austrian delegates must sign will be ready before June. There are troublesome territorial problems involved in that document which will require careful handling.

Whether President Wilson will be able to remain in France until the Austrian treaty is completed has not yet been decided. This matter probably will be determined within the next fortnight.

The peace treaty will be handed to the Germans on Tuesday, the Petit Journal believes.

CREDENTIALS SATISFACTORY.

According to the Matin, the Belgian ministry has requested the Belgian delegates to warn the Big Three that the Belgian public is greatly excited over the failure to "obtain satisfaction in the conference." This same newspaper comments caustically on the Kiao-Chau settlement. It claims that President Wilson made concessions to avoid a conflict in which the interests of the United States would have directly suffered.

In the meantime, it was said, Premier Orlando is waiting for France and England to establish an agreement on Italy with the President.

The credentials of members of the German peace delegation have been found to be satisfactory, declared Marcel Hutin, in the Echo de Paris today.

The peace treaty, Hutin said, will be composed of from fifteen to twenty chapters with a preamble stating why the allies entered the war and why a League of Nations is a necessity.

This will be followed by two chapters dealing with Germany's frontiers, then a chapter carrying military naval and aerial clauses and a chapter dealing with the disposition of Germany's colonies.

The final chapter will refer to the guarantees which Germany must give that she will carry out her part of the peace pact.

The press will receive a resume of the treaty on Sunday, said Hutin. Premier Clemenceau will lay the text of the peace preliminary on the table May 15.

Paris, May 2.—Seventeen thousand Jugo-Slav troops have crossed the armistice line of demarcation in Carinthia, delivering a series of attacks in the sectors of Arnoldstein, Villach and Rosenbach, said a dispatch to the Matin today.

Then the Jugo-Slavs crossed the Drave river, cutting communication between Austria and the Italian Adriatic coast. The attacks began Monday night.

HOUSE SCORED BY WARNER FOR NEGLECT

Speaker in Spirited Address From Floor Demands Attention to Duty

action of this body in its unjust failure to perform its public duties.

"No other Legislature in the country is in session at this time.

"Why are we lagging? We are lagging because we are unwilling to meet the great issues of the day. It is disgraceful that we must send out for members to vote.

"It is high time that we have a reverent regard for our public trust."

Speaker Warner here diverted from his attack to point to Representative B. Loring Young of Weston, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, as one of the few who did not shirk his public duties.

"This man has been here every day against the advice of a physician," snapped the Speaker, "and if a man like that can make such a sacrifice to serve his people at the danger of his life it would seem that it is not too much to ask the members who are well to remain in their seats during the session."

Speaker Warner's attack caused a profound sensation. Replies were immediately made by Representative Hays of Brighton and Doyle of New Bedford, Republicans.

Representatives McDonnell, Fitzgerald and Reidy of Boston, all Democrats, supported the Speaker. McDonnell asserted that the Democratic members had helped him from the start and Reidy intimated that there were three Republican parties in the House, two of them headed by candidates for the Speakership against Warner.

"The greatest cause of this delay and inattention to the public business is in the committees," declared Representative Greenwood, Republican, of Everett. "I have seen citizens from all parts of the State come to the committee rooms to support or oppose important legislation. The committees were supposed to meet at 10:30, but at 11:30 I have seen but one member reach the room."

Doyle charged that the House "machine" was inexperienced and incompetent. This, he charged, was the fault of the Speaker.

BLAMES THE SPEAKER.

Speaker Warner, preceding his speech, introduced an order for the House, beginning next week, to hold two sessions daily. At the close of the debate the order was unanimously adopted.

Mr. Hays said: "I resent the implications of the address of the speaker. Scores of members have equally good records. I object to singling out the member from Weston as the only one with a good score, as if the others were shirks. The best Legislature New York ever had was not as good as the worst that Massachusetts ever had. fault of disorder is as much due to the speaker in not preserving order as in the House for not observing order. If the lieutenants of the speaker would do their duty, there would be better order."

Mr. Fitzgerald declared that New York had a far better Legislature than that of Massachusetts, and "the trouble here was the membership of such members as the member from Brighton, who have other interests than those of the public at heart."

The chair warned Mr. Fitzgerald to refrain from personalities. Mr. Fitzgerald went on to praise the New York Legislature for its efficiency and eulogized Speaker Warner for his ability and honesty. He also praised Mr. Young of Weston and said that if he had his health nothing could stop him from being Governor in a few years. Other members of the Ways and Means Committee, he said, deserved high praise. He hoped the House would stand by the Speaker.

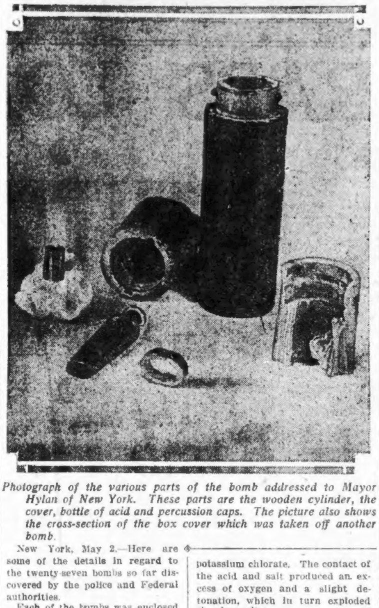
TOO MANY CHAIRMANSHIPS.

Mr. Abbott of Haverhill said:

"On the Judiciary Committee, of which I am House chairman, there are five Senators and every one of them is chairman of some other committee. They cannot attend the sessions of the Judiciary Committee and it is practically impossible for more than the Senate chairman to be present.

"Three of the House members are also chairmen of other committees and their duties elsewhere take them from the Judiciary Committee."

Bombs Alike in Design and Made by Experts



Photograph of the various parts of the bomb addressed to Mayor Hylan of New York. These parts are the wooden cylinder, the cover, bottle of acid and percussion caps. The picture also shows the cross-section of the box cover which was taken off another bomb.

New York, May 2.—Here are some of the details in regard to the twenty-seven bombs so far discovered by the police and Federal authorities.

Each of the bombs was enclosed in a wrapper which is known as enamelled or embossed book paper. The wrapper was white with an India tint. The paper is used for printing, but seldom for wrapping, owing to its cost and weight. It bore no distinctive marks. It is made by numerous paper mills.

The cardboard receptacle in which the bomb box was contained is known to the trade as a candy or novelty box. It is 8 inches long, 2 inches wide and 1½ inches high. It is machine-made and also machine-wrapped.

Not more than twelve of the 400 paper box makers in this city manufacture machine-wrapped boxes.

The paper covering is light green and is known as a "metallic paper with basket weave effect."

The bomb itself was contained in a "turn-wood" box, supposed to have been made by a hand lathe. Its dimensions on the outside are 7¼ inches by 1 1-5 inches. The diameter on the inside is seven-eighths of an inch. An inquiry among all machine-turned box manufacturers in this city showed no box of such dimensions is kept in stock. No concern had any record of a special order for such receptacles.

Within the wooden container were the ingredients making up the bomb. They consisted of a glass phial, containing nearly one-third of an ounce of concentrated sulphuric acid. This was tightly corked.

Underneath were three tiny copper cylinders, containing potassium chlorate and metal percussion caps. Three ounces of regulation 40 per cent dynamite completed the machine.

When the top was wrenched off two brass screws on the sides broke the bottle, allowing the liquid to flow into the cylinders holding the potassium chlorate. The contact of the acid and salt produced an excess of oxygen and a slight detonation, which in turn exploded the dynamite.

The entire package was put up in most workmanlike shape. Only the printing on the wrapper was poorly done.

most prosperous officers of the Boston Police Department. He saved his money, invested prudently and was said to be worth between $75,000 and $100,000.

In his early days on the force he was attached to the liquor squad at Pemberton square, and also did much work for the District Attorney's office. He acquired a reputation for energetic and intelligent work as an investigator. Promotion rewarded his efforts.

He had been in command at Dudley street police station since March 25, when he was transferred there from the new Athens street station in South Boston.

Several years ago while attached to the district attorney's office Captain Lee, with Inspectors Tom Lynch and Michael Cronin, was sent to Austria to bring about the arrest of jewelry thieves who had plundered in Boston on a large scale. He brought back the men he had set out to get. The case, known as the "Goldberg case," attracted widespread attention at the time.

When the Athens street station was built in South Boston Captain Lee was placed in charge of it. In a few weeks' time he had cleaned up all the crap-shooting joints, closed up the small clubs where gaming was carried on and had squelched the illegal sale of liquor.

Captain Lee was married on June 16, 1918, to Miss Catherine Arnold of Dorchester. His wife survives him and a half-brother, John McCaffrey of Saxonville. He was born in South Boston on October 24, 1865.

narcotic law because of the discovery of other evidence against him and will be held on this charge pending the outcome of the investigation. He was placed on $2,000 bond. The police say he once served a prison sentence for selling opium.

Detectives were sent to search for the man who Baldwin asserts gave him the bottles.

Detectives today learned that the paper in which the packages containing the bombs were wrapped was made by Louis de Jonge & Co. of New York. It is possible a clue to the identity of the bomb plotters may be found from this bit of evidence, because the company only recently began manuacturing paper of this quality.

Quantities of it have been shipped to Chicago, St. Louis, Philadelphia and other cities. The company furnished the police with a list of the purchasers.

Federal Postoffice Department officials today expressed fear that the plotters may have mailed infernal machines to President Wilson and other members of the American peace delegation in Paris.

A warning was flashed to members of the delegation and to French postoffice officials to exercise every precaution to prevent explosions in case bombs should reach the other side.

Officials of both the Postoffice Department and the Department of Justice now are convinced that several persons, including woman anarchists, had a hand in the manufacture and mailing of the death dealing parcels.

25,000 Professional Preachers of Revolution in U. S., Washington Says

Washington, May 2.—That at least 25,000 professional apostles of revolution are preaching their doctrines in the United States was the belief expressed today by an official of a government department in close touch with the situation, and in addition to these, it was stated there are probably thousands who, while not devoting their entire time to the movement, are nevertheless making their efforts felt.

These "Red" officials, in the opinion of officials, representa an amalgamation of radicals in a common revolutionary aim of setting up a "proleteriat" government in the United States. They are said also to control thirteen newspapers, eight of which are printed in English and the other in foreign tongues. And reports that have reached government circles are to the effect that converts are being recorded by the hundreds every day.

The "Red" missionaries are believed to have been most active in the Far West with their eastern program centring about New York. Officials pointed to the May Day disturbances and to the bomb plot uncovered this week as evidence that their preachings have not been unfruitful.

Although the Department of Justice would make no comment today upon the situation, it is known that agents of the department, and of other branches of the government, have been watching very closely all meetings conducted by the radicals during the past few weeks.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR ROXBURY RIOTERS

Heavy Police Detail as Suspects in Parade Fight Are Arraigned in Roxbury

be used, if necessary, to keep the peace.

"Our police will be backed to the limit in enforcement of law and order," declared the Commissioner. There are six machine guns in the police department, which were in readiness yesterday if the trouble in Roxbury got beyond control. The guns are Colts, and there are men on the force who know how to handle them.

Superintendent of Police Crowley today received a letter of commendation from Governor Coolidge for the way the men handled the delicate situation in Humboldt avenue. Governor Coolidge also sent to Patrolmen Shea and Butterman, the officers who were wounded, a note congratulating them for their courage and expressing the appreciation of the people for what they did.

SOLDIERS COMMENDED.

Governor Coolidge in an informal statement on the trouble commended highly the many discharged soldiers and sailors who assisted the police in breaking up the crowds after the trouble started.

The authorities took no chances of a repetition of yesterday's disorder, and officers in uniform were in such numbers as to overawe any attempt to stir up the crowd.

Sympathizers of the rioters as well as the public generally were barred from the court room unless they could show that they had legitimate business within. Protests against this were not listened to, and insistence was met by a not too gentle push and orders to move on.

Even the efforts of the police could not keep a mass of people from congregating in front of the court house and throughout that section of Roxbury street, but the crowd was kept moving. Volunteer orators who sought to harangue the people about their alleged wrongs were quickly sent on their way.

A half-hearted attempt of the mob to sing the "Internationale" was rewarded by a quavering answer from one of the prisoners in the court house, but he was quickly hushed.

The condition of the three wounded policemen who were injured in suppressing disorder was slightly improved today, as was that of Dr. Henry H. Leavitt of No. 89 Humboldt avenue, who was hit in the foot by a stray bullet.

Gillen Resolution Calls for Passage of Bates Anti-Anarchy Bill

A resolution denouncing the Roxbury rioters as "foreign anarchists" and demanding immediate passage by the Legislature of the Bates "anti-anarchy" bill was filed with the House today by Representative Daniel J. Gillen of Boston.

The order was referred to the Committee on Rules. It says:

"Whereas, yesterday within the confines of the Commonwealth the red flag of anarchy was substituted for the stars and stripes and carried at the head of a procession made up of certain foreign elements whose purpose was the overthrow of democratic government; and,

"Whereas, when reproached by the duly appointed guardians of the peace, they not only made attempts to take the lives of said guardians but also endangered the lives and property of peaceful and law-abiding citizens of the Commonwealth; and,

"Whereas, further demonstrations of this kind will constitute a grave menace to the peace of the community and the stability of our government; and,

"Whereas, there is pending at the present time in a committee of the General Court legislation which, if enacted, would assist in preventing the spread of this movement and would stop future demonstrations of this kind by imposing a severe penalty if attempted; therefore, be it

"Resolved, that it is the opinion of the members of the House of Representatives that the joint Committee on the Judiciary, now considering this legislation, should report immediately on the matter, in order that its speedy consideration will prohibit another demonstration of this nature, providing it is enacted."

LUXURY TAX IS TRICKY; EASY TO BEAT BUT HARD TO UNDERSTAND

ICE CREAM VENDERS NIPPED

Hokey Pokey Man Will Need a C. P. A. as Assistant; Consumer Not Forgotten

The new war taxes hit everything from little Johnny's ice cream cone, the tire purchased for last season's "flivver" by the commuting suburbanite or the new 1919 model automobile, the proud possession of Mr. Gotrocks.

It is truer than ever that you cannot escape death or taxes—especially taxes. And as yet few of the merchants of Boston have any idea of all the articles which are taxed and the tax on those sold above a certain price.

MEMORY TRAINING ESSENTIAL.

When they realize it, according to Gray Stevens of the American Sales Book Company of No. 200 Devonshire street, the different businesses affected will consider the following ways of keeping track of the tax:

A system of keeping accounts for pokey cart men.

Double entry bookkeeping for ice cream parlors and soda fountains.

Memory training for salesmen and women in department stores.

Mr. Stevens does not claim to be an expert, but he is being fairly deluged with inquiries by business firms, which are anxious to find out where the tax begins and where it leaves off.

"You can't blame the merchants for being puzzled," said Mr. Stevens. "If a man entered a drugstore, for example, and bought himself a drink costing thirty cents, if there is such a drink, he would pay a war tax of three cents upon it.

"But if the same man was treating a lady friend and bought two drinks costing thirty cents each, he would have to pay a war tax of four cents. On a five-cent drink you pay one cent tax or 20 per cent, on a ten-cent drink you pay one cent tax, or 10 per cent, and on a fifteen-cent drink you pay two cents tax, or 13 1-3 per cent. The tax is one cent on every ten cents or fraction thereof.

"Let the same man take his lady friend to a restaurant and he can order ice cream for both without paying any tax, because selling ice cream is only an incidental part of that business.

YOUNGSTERS HIT HARD.

"Certain soft drinks like ginger ale and patented soft drinks are taxed where they are manufactured and pay no tax if sold elsewhere. But, on the other hand, the pokey cart man selling ice cream cones to the kiddies is required to collect a tax of one cent on every nickel or 10-cent cone that he sells."

The tax hits both luxuries and soft drinks and ices and there are so many things in the luxury class, Mr. Stevens declares, that salesmen and women will have to put in hours studying them.

"Stores selling soft drinks and ice cream will have to have two sets of checks," said Mr. Stevens. "One set for drinks that are not taxable and another for drinks that are, showing the amount of the tax. Even the pokey car men are required to make a sworn statement each month of the amount of war taxes they have received, and turn such taxes over to the internal revenue collector."

Manufacturers are taxed 5 per cent. on automobiles and on pianos. The question is: Will the manufacturers pass the tax along to the retailer? And if so, will the retailer pass it on to the consumer? It's pretty nearly a safe bet that this will happen. In which case all of the tax will be paid by the ultimate purchaser, also known as the consumer.

SILK STOCKINGS HIGH.

"If a man buys a pair of silk stockings for his wife and pays more than $2 for them he must pay a tax of 10 per cent.," said Mr. Stevens. "If he buys himself a hat and pays more than $5, it becomes a luxury, taxable at 10 per cent. The framers of the law were wise enough to make $15 the untaxable limit on women's hats, but shoes costing over $10 are taxed, so are handbags costing over $7.50.

"There is a tax on graphophones, and a stiff tax on hunting implements. Dirk knives are taxed at 100 per cent., which ought to discourage crime.

"The candy tax is a puzzling one, too. If a man is both manufacturer and retailer he pays a 5 per cent. tax and will probably pass it on to the purchaser. But if he merely retails candy which he buys from the manufacturer, the manufacturer is the only one taxed.

But there are ways and means of evading the soft drink and ice cream tax, Mr. Stevens declares, ways against which the government evidently could not protect itself.

MRS. GERAGHTY ASKS ONLY FOR SEPARATION

Heiress' Mother Expected to Testify That "Jack" Was Guilty of Cruelty

Mrs. Julia French Geraghty, the Newport heiress, is not seeking an absolute divorce from Jack Geraghty.

Papers in her suit brought here today reveal that she asks only for a divorce "from bed and board." Under the laws of Rhode Island this means a legal separation in which the parties cannot marry but may visit each other at any time, and for any length of time that they may desire.

It is expected that not more than two witnesses besides the young petitioner will appear in the Newport court at the hearing. One of these will most likely be Mrs. Geraghty's mother, Mrs. Amos Tuck French of Newport, Tuxedo and New York.

It is expected that Mrs. Geraghty and her two witnesses will testify that Jack Geraghty is guilty of non-support and cruelty.

MANY MADE LATE BY CAMBRIDGE CAR TIE-UP

Power Shut Off in Rush Hour Following Broken Trolley Wire

Thousands were delayed in reaching work today, surface cars on the Arlington and North Cambridge lines were tied up for three-quarters of an hour and a jam followed in the Harvard square station of the Cambridge tunnel when a trolley wire broke on Massachusetts avenue, near Shepard street, during the height of the morning rush hour.

Arlington and North Cambridge cars were stalled as far as Porter station bridge, giving patrons a walk of a quarter of a mile to reach the subway. On the Mount Auburn line cars were stalled as far as Ash street and patrons of both lines poured into the subway, choking it so thoroughly that great delay was caused in getting tunnel trains under way to Boston.

Some of the commuters inbound from Arlington and North Cambridge took Beacon street cars to Central square, causing another jam at that station. The tie-up lasted until a repair crew had put in a new piece of wire.

AUTO PRISONERS WIN DASH FOR LIBERTY

Push Police From Car at Westfield and Escape in Wild Pursuit

Westfield, May 2.—Pushing a policeman from the running board of their automobile, believed to be stolen, two alleged auto thieves gave the police auto a wild chase through this town and escaped into the woods only after dodging bullets from the officers and abandoning their car in a mud hole.

They were on their way to the police station when they broke away. Both machines caused excitement by the breakneck speed of their flight through town, and the strangers, whose car bore a New York number plate, were outstripping the police auto when they broke down.

The two strangers had slept in their car all day near the Springfield road, and late in the afternoon Patrolmen James J. Ashe and Michael F. Murphy were sent to investigate. The strangers agreed to go to the station, and Patrolman Ashe steped onto the running board of their car. They suddenly pushed him off and speeded up, Patrolman Murphy giving chase. He attempted to stop their flight by firing at the tires.

Patrolman Ashe obtained another car and took up the pursuit. The strange car became stuck in the mud on a road in Blandford and its occupants escaped into the woods, carrying two suitcases.

Kendall Gives Wife Millions as They Separate

New York, May 2.—As a novel digression from the sordid, money-mad love troubles of the rich comes the news of the Lyman Kendall divorce, in Maine, carrying the most astounding alimony ever known. Aside from property valued at more than $1,000,000, Mr. Kendall agreed to allot to his wife of twenty years an annual income of $100,000 as long as she lives. And he gives with it his very good wishes for her happiness.

Mrs. Kendall has returned to her home at No. 520 Park avenue after a residence of almost a year at her Bar Harbor estate, "Sonogee." This magnificent show place of the fashionable Maine resort and the apartment house in New York where Mrs. Kendall resides are gifts of alimony from the retired Wall street multi-millionaire.

$1,000,000 CASH ALLOTMENT.

The apartment house is distinguished along with the William K. Vanderbilt apartment, in East Fifty-third street, as the finest in the city. Its furnishings and the gorgeous art works of Mrs. Kendall's individual apartment are valued in the millions of dollars. The interior walls are inlaid with imported English paneling, brought from twelfth century castles.

There was an added allotment of $1,000,000 in cash.

But aside from this monetary high-water mark of the "alimoniacs" the story of the Kendalls' domestic infelicity itself is most astonishing. They haven't been able to find a thing the matter with this case other than the claim made in the formal court papers, incompatability.

William M. Sullivan, attorney for Mrs. Kendall, explains the whole affair in this way:

"Mr. and Mrs. Kendall were two intelligent people who had spent twenty years of their lives together. They were boy and girl sweethearts way back in the days when Nellie Ballentine was giving her first formal parties in the Boise, Idaho, home.

"She was always a social peer in her girlhood because her father was one of the most esteemed and popular men in the Middle West. He served his State as Senator and later as Governor.

LIBERAL PROPERTY DIVISION.

"With very little money, but a great deal of romance, the Kendalls started life together in the West. As their luck improved they came East. Mr. Kendall went to Wall Street and his fortune began to pile up. As they rose to social heights Mrs. Kendall found life happier and more interesting on its peaks. Her husband wanted to spend his days in the tranquility of a Blue Ridge Mountain estate in Virginia.

"They simply discussed their different likes and tastes as two intelligent people bearing no malice toward one another would do.

"They agreed that it was better for each to live his life in his own way. She cared for New York and its social life. His thoughts were of Virginia and the balmy mountain air of his country place.

"Mrs. Kendall did not dream of asking for so much. But Mr. Kendall made it clear that by his system of measurement and idea of justice she should have a fair share of what he considered their common property.

"They started out together with very little money, and she shared in whatever hardships they met. Mr. Kendall believed she also should share at this end of the row."

Mrs. Kendall is forty years old; Mr. Kendall is fifty. Both are in excellent health.

Mrs. Kendall still has the striking beauty of youth and a personal charm that has endeared her to the younger society set of Bar Harbor. Because of this popularity and the pleasure she gets from entertaining, the gracious chatelaine of Sonogee has planned a Summer of gaiety in the little colony.

Last year the place was turned into a home for convalescent army officers and the young misses and beaux missed the interesting parties.

Society, therefore, gasps at the really extraordinary case, for it has ended quite happily for all concerned.

New "Alimony King" Beats Astor, Gould and Corey

Before the munificence of Lyman Kendall, "king of alimony," these cases were the high spots:

John Jacob Astor established the three-minute divorce record and left for the recent Mrs. Astor (Miss Ava Willing of Philadelphia) $10,000,000.

Howard Gould pays his wife under a separation decree $3,000 per month.

Frank Gould's first wife received a recompense reported to be only $108,000 in cash.

Mrs. Mary Blair Brokaw won $30,000 a year from W. Gould Brokaw.

William Ellis Corey, elevated from a laborer to the presidency of the United States Steel Corporation, was said to have settled $1,000,000 on his wife.

Nicholas Chiusano, twenty years of age, of Emerson place, Brooklyn, N. Y., was turned over to the New York police at East Boston today.

Lieutenant Michael F. Fiaschetti and Sergeant William Quinn of Brooklyn were on hand, and when Chiusano was discharged on the technical charge of murder under which he was held, the New York officers took him in custody.

Chiusano is wanted in connection with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hosbach, who were shot and killed in a roadhouse at Ozone Park, Queens County, New York, January 20.

Four young men entered the roadhouse conducted by the Hosbachs, and after failing to get money they shot and killed the proprietor and his wife.

Three of the four were captured, but Chiusano, who according to the police admits he was with the party, escaped. He made his way at once to East Boston, where he has been ever since. The police say he denied having fired the fatal shots.

He waived all rights of extradition and agreed to accompany the officers.

MAN IN IRONS PLUNGES FROM MOVING TRAIN

Prisoner Overtaken in Woods Near Sagamore After Exciting Chase

Barnstable, May 2.—A spectacular attempt to escape, while handcuffed, from the State police, by jumping from a train running at twenty-five miles an hour between Bournedale and Sagamore, was made by Edward H. Baker, eighteen, of Stratford, Ct. After his capture in the woods he was today arraigned before Judge Swift in the district court and admitted nearly twenty burglaries in the Cape district.

The thrilling break for freedom was made despite a closed window which Baker had tried to induce State Officer Bradford to open. With his manacled hands before him Baker smashed the glass and jumped. Bradford caught his legs, but was forced to let him go. When the train came to a stop there followed a thrilling chase in the woods which would have delighted the most rabid movie fan. It ended when Baker fell exhausted from his efforts and loss of blood. Twenty stitches were needed to close the cuts on his hands and head.

Baker, who said he recently escaped from a reformatory, was identified by the station agent as the man he saw lying on a settee in the Bournedale railroad station just after breaks had been committed there and at Sagamore station and a barber shop. The agent gave the tip that Baker had boarded a train for Boston when the State police came seeking him. His breaks in these places netted him about $40.

BURLESON MAY AVERT STRIKE IF HE QUITS

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—"If Postmaster-General Burleson resigns as head of the telegraph and telephone lines there is a small chance that the threatened strike of the electrical workers will be called," said Charles P. Ford, secretary of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

The electrical workers are balloting on the question of calling a nation-wide strike July 1, because the postmaster-general refuses to recognize the electrical workers.

COLE AIDS LOAN ON FIRST DAY AS CIVILIAN

Speaks in North Adams and Holyoke in Behalf of the Big Drive

Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole today spent his first day in private life by continuing his patriotic work and speaking for the Victory Loan. The former general of the 52d Brigade of the 26th Division left Camp Devens yesterday, his discharge signed by General McCain, and went at once to Holyoke to boost the V loan, and today he was in North Adams on a similar worthy mission.

As he left Camp Devens scores of Y. D. men, both of his own and other commands, shook his hand and wished him good luck, a compliment which he warmly reciprocated. But at present General Cole has no plans in civil life. He will continue to work for the Victory Loan until the end of the campaign, and has work to do for the Salvation Army which will take until the middle of May. Later he and Mrs. Cole will leave Boston for a brief vacation.

PLEADS FOR FINE TO CARE FOR SICK WIFE

Notary, Found Guilty of Falsifying Questionnaire, Has 2 Weeks to Adjust Affairs

Julius Latkowitch of Allston, who was convicted a year ago by a Federal jury on the charge of falsifying the questionnaire of Joseph Solomon, appeared before Judge Morton for sentence.

Attorney Leon Eyges, who represented the defendant, asked that a fine be imposed rather than imprisonment on the ground that the defendant's sick wife and child depended on him entirely for support.

Assistant United States Attorney Daniel A. Shea, who conducted the case for the Government against Latkowitch, was asked by the court for information relative to the case. Mr. Shea stated that the defendant had signed an affidavit that the mother and sister of the registrant swore that they were dependent on him. Both women testified that they had never appeared before Latkowitch, who is a notary public.

The court asked the attorney if the defendant had any choice of place of confinement, and intimated that he would give Latkowitch a sentence of a year and a day. The court gave him two weeks in which to adjust his family and business affairs. He will, in all probability, be sentenced two weeks from today.

SHOE DEALER GETS YEAR FOR FALSE OATH

Robbins Found Guilty Year Ago in Bankruptcy Assets Case

Nyman E. Robbins, Boston wholesale shoe dealer, who was convicted by a jury in the Federal Court more than a year ago on the charge of concealing assets from his trustee in bankruptcy and for making a false oath, was sentenced by Judge James M. Morton, Jr., in the United States District Court to serve a year and a day in the Plymouth House of Correction.

Sentence was not imposed on the defendant until now as he has been in ill health. Robbins appeared in court unable to walk without the use of a cane.

Assistant United States Attorney Lewis Goldberg, who appeared for the government, told Judge Morton that under ordinary circumstances he would have asked for the maximum sentence, but because of the defendant's health he would ask the court to sentence him to a year and a day on each indictment, sentences to run concurrently.

W. Murray Crane's Dog Loses in Fight With Porcupine

Lenox, May 2.—"Murray Junior," the Airedale pet of W. Murray Crane, is a sadder but a wiser dog today after an encounter with a porcupine. It happened on the Windsor estate of Mr. Crane, who took the dog with him while he went to inspect some new blue-ribbon cows he had recently bought.

"Murray Junior," on a little independent romping tour, met the enemy and was his. Missed and searched for by his master, he was found suffering acutely with a faceful of newly-acquired whiskers. Mr. Crane rushed the animal in his automobile to a veterinary, who spent four hours picking out the quills. "Murray Junior" stood the pain like a hero but thinks the world ought not to be made safe for porcupines.

AUTOIST FACES MALDEN COURT FOR TRAGEDY

Edwin Churchill of Clark road, Swampscott, appeared in Malden Court today on charges of manslaughter following the death of Mrs. Annie T. Stodder of No. 391 Salem street, Malden, from injuries received when she was run over by Churchill's automobile. The case was continued.

The accident occurred on Main street. Mrs. Stodder attempted to cross the street in front of Churchill's car, it is said. Churchill called a police ambulance after the accident and assisted in removing Mrs. Stodder to the Malden Hospital, where she died from a fractured skull.

$30,500,000,000 Paid Out by U. S. Since Entry Into War

By International News Service.

Washington, May 2.—The treasury has paid out about $30,500,000,000 since America's entry into the war, a little more than two years ago, it was announced today. This amount includes, however, nearly $10,000,000,000 in loans to the allies, which eventually will be refunded.

That the war expenses of the nation have abated but little since the signing of the armistice is proved by the announcement that during April treasury expenditures amounted to some $1,420,000,000, of which about 66 per cent. went for the payment of direct war bills and the remainder to the allies to enable them to pay obligations already incurred in the purchase of war materials and foodstuffs in this country.

COWBOY IS HERO WHEN LIONESS ESCAPES

Kills Beast That Had Killed Keeper in Cage and Terrorized New Jersey Town

Woodbury, N. J., May 2.—William Miller, a cowboy with the Cook Brothers Circus, is the recognized deliverer of this town today. It was a bullet from his gun that pierced the heart of the lioness Lucy, who ran amuck here, after killing her keeper, John Henry, and tearing him into ribbons in the corner of her cage.

The tragedy occurred while the afternoon show was on. Lucy was playing with her two cubs, whacking them about the cage, when Henry, a discharged soldier and her new tamer, opened the door to clean the cage. Just as he did so, a sudden playful lurch of the big beast opened the cage door that the keeper had carelessly left unlocked, opening the way to the freedom that she had not known since her jungle days.

The keeper made a desperate attempt to remedy his carelessness, but Lucy, with a lightning stroke of her paw, sent him bodily into a corner of the cage with his neck broken. She then stood over him, tearing his flesh and crushing his life out.

Forgetful of her cubs, the big animal then made a leap for freedom. There was a wild scramble to get out of the way of the enraged beast as she passed through the main tent and into the circus grounds. Many were hurt in the panic to get out of her way.

By the time she reached the town not a man, woman or child was in sight. She was followed into the woods by a posse of men armed with guns. As she stood with her paws up on a fallen tree trunk she was the target for the fusilade. The credit for the killing was given to Miller, although twelve bullets were found in the body of the animal when the carcass was examined.

Henry, the man who was killed, was a negro, thirty years old, who lived in Newburgh, N. Y. He had been out of the army only a few weeks.

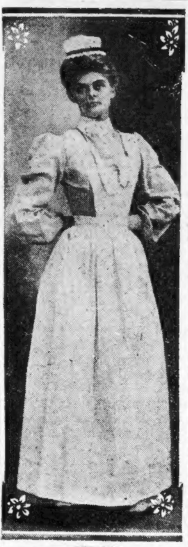
JANE JEFFREY, Boston nurse, who, although wounded during a German air raid, stuck to her post and has been rewarded with the Distinguished Service Cross.



For heroic conduct during a German air raid at Jouy-sur-Morin, France, Miss Jane Jeffery of Boston has been decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross. According to the citation, Miss Jeffery stuck to her post, although badly wounded, and by her courageous attitude in helping others "was inspiring to all her associates."

Miss Jeffery went abroad in September, 1917, with the Children's Hospital Unit. She served at the Red Cross repatriation depot at Evian until the battle of the Marne, when she was transferred to Jouy. Her home is with her aunt, Mrs. James Baldwin, of No. 36 Bellevue avenue, Meeting House Hill.

R. McADOO GOT $40,000, CARSE ADMITS

Submarine Boat President Testifies W. G. McAdoo Approved of Business Connection

New York, May 2.—A big, heavy-built man of middle age, whose clothing showed signs of considerable wear, walked into the office of Henry R. Carse, vice-president of the Hanover National Bank, in November, 1915. He said:

"Carse, I want you to help me. I've a chance to manufacture 9-inch shells in Canada, but I am up against it financially. If you can see your way clear to helping me I assure you I am less impetuous and more thorough than I used to be."

The banker looked at his interrogator narrowly and replied:

"Perhaps you can do something for me. You know I am president of the Electric Boat Company. We want to get big contracts from the government, but for some reason the navy heads seem to be prejudiced against us. You might help us in Washington."

Carse's visitor was Malcolm Ross McAdoo, brother of William G. McAdoo. From that interview, Carse said on the witness stand before Vice-Chancellor Merritt Lane, in Newark, grew up an alliance between Malcolm Ross McAdoo and his concern.

Carse testified in a suit initiated by Elihu B. Frost to compel his removal as one of the five voting trustees controlling the affairs of the Electric Boat Company.

The witness admitted giving Malcolm Ross McAdoo $43,500, but denied the assertion of Mr. Frost and Norman Johnson, that this was for influencing public officials in Washington. Specifically he denied that Malcolm McAdoo had told him a $25,000 "rake off" was to go to William G. McAdoo for aiding the securing of millions of dollars in government contracts.

Carse said he loaned Malcolm successive sums of $15,000, $10,000 and $15,000, taking as collateral McAdoo's word. He knew at the time the latter had $30,000 worth of judgments against him in New York State. He also gave Malcolm McAdoo at odd times $3,400 for personal expenses, clothing, railroad fare, etc.

All this sum, he said, was in cash, because Malcolm did not believe he could get a check cashed. Later, when Malcolm sued him for $60,000 additional, he settled the suit out of court in this wise: He gave Malcolm $43,400, of which McAdoo returned $40,000, and in return got back the three notes whose existence was revealed in the American yesterday.

Newport, R. I., May 2.—The Eustis-Codman "German spy" society case will be fought out in Superior Court. Charles H. Koehne, Jr., and Frank F. Legal action by Mr. and Mrs. Eustis against Mr. Codman followed a luncheon given by Mrs. Rogers Benjamin Pratt here last October, at which, it was alleged, Mr. Codman insinuated that the Eustises were "German spies."

CASSIDY RULED POLICY OF THE BANK

Testimony in $8,000,000 Will Trial to Show He Was of Sound Mind Up to Last Illness

Bangor, Me., May 2.—Much evidence was introduced in the $8,000,000 Cassidy will trial today by the proponents of the will to show that millionaire Cassidy was in possession of his usual judgment and sound common sense up to the time of his last illness.

Frederick T. Hill, a director of the Eastern Trust and Savings Bank Company and himself a millionaire, testified that Mr. Cassidy personally attended to the important affairs of the bank until he was compelled to stay at home on account of failing health.

Edward Prentiss, an official of a company in which Mr. Cassidy was interested, testified that Mr. Cassidy gave his attention to numerous matters of policy in connection with the mill and always appeared to be of sound mind and good judgment.

It is expected that a great many more witnesses of this kind testifying as to the judgment and sanity of the late Mr. Cassidy in the period of the making of codicils from 1906 to 1910 will be heard during the next few days.

HUNTING FOR TROUBLE.

Matthew Laughlin, who drew up Mr. Cassidy's will, testified: "From 1906 to 1909 I saw Mr. Cassidy nearly every day. I noticed no change in his habit of acquiring money since 1906."

Q. (by Mr. Coakley)—When he made his will he said the more money a man had the more trouble he had, didn't he, and yet he kept on hunting for trouble just as hard as ever, didn't he? A.—I said yesterday that he said the more money a person has the more trouble he has.

Q.—And yet he went on accumulating more trouble up to 1909 as far as you observed? A.—He certainly did.

Q.—You said John Cassidy was in temper once. What was the occasion will you tell us? A.—I would rather not, but will if I must. The incident occurred in the Eastern Trust & Banking Company. I dropped in on my way to dinner and Mr. Cassidy asked Mr. Crosby to bring out some papers in a matter which involved some $40,000 or $50,000. He wanted immediate action. I was not the regular attorney of the bank and objected to doing business in that hasty way. I said I couldn't do justice to myself or to the bank, and that I was surprised that the bank wanted business done in that way. Mr. Cassidy got angry and I didn't do much business for him after that. In 1910 I did some legal business for him and in 1911 a very little, making some mortgages, perhaps. They were not important matters. I practically ceased to do business for John Cassidy.

CASSIDY THE REAL HEAD.

Charles D. Crosby, president of the Eastern Trust & Banking Company, testified:

"In 1891, Mr. Cassidy became president of the bank. His salary was then $1,000 a year; later it went to $4,000, then to $5,000, and finally to $8,000. He received $8,000 four or five years before 1912. After he was stricken he received no salary.

"He was the real executive head of the bank. All matters of importance came to him. Regular customers' loans did not go to him unless they wanted to exceed the usual limit. Nothing important was done without his approval. The executive board was composed of prominent business men.

"I think as a general thing the opinion of Mr. Cassidy prevailed. I can't recall any occasion when it did not. I don't know at whose instance James Cassidy was made a member of the executive board. James was nearly always present but I don't recall that he ever took part in the discussions. Mr. Cassidy was courteous, but final in his attitude.

"He arrived at the bank at about 9 o'clock and his stay depended on the amount of business looked over. He came again about 11:30 for half an hour. His office at the bank was sort of a public meeting place. Very many came to him for advice, which he always was glad to give.

"His knowledge of affairs was more complete than that of any other man I ever knew. He got his knowledge by reading the financial papers and the regular newspapers."

CHARGE FRAUD ATTEMPT ON MOTHER OF SOLDIER

Charged with using the United States mails in a scheme to defraud the relatives, Frank W. Poor, who claims to live on Warren avenue, South End, appeared before United States Commissioner Hayes today and pleaded not guilty. His case was continued until May 15. It is charged that Poor wrote a letter to Mrs. Ernest Flentje of Cambridge, whose son is said to have been court-martialed at Camp Devens, and offered her, for money, information which would effect his sentence. He was arrested by postoffice inspectors and turned over to the United States marshal's office.

Sharpens His Razor Blades on Grand Opera Records

Cleveland, May 2.—Grand opera singers who have their voices canned in music records easily believe they are as clear as a bell, but—as sharp as a razor.

But such records will sharpen razors just as sure as Claude C. Hale, of Cleveland, tells the truth, and he declares he has no reason to belie the facts.

Hale put one of his grand opera records on his talking machine, starts it going, then presses his safety razor blades against the revolving record and with a few revolutions he has "an edge that is an edge."

It assures an "unswearable and profaneless shave," Hale insists.

POST TOASTIES

Liberty Loan booth on street floor; Congressman Fuller's collection of war trophies in windows; over two hundred photographs of YD boys in men's clothes shops, second floor.

Filene's

High specialization in DRESSES

SPECIALIZATION of the thorough kind that devotes one separate shop to women's machine-made wash dresses—dresses from $1.50 to $7.50, no higher. In this group are house dresses, nurses' and maids' uniforms, simple little wash dresses.

STILL another separate shop for women's inexpensive dresses—$7.50 to $14. In this group are surprisingly good little frocks in foulard voiles, ginghams, linens, grasscloths, novel English prints, taffetas, satins and even Georgettes. Three examples are sketched.

A four-price store

ONCE upon a time, when a woman went in a store to buy a hat or a suit, she could not tell the price by looking at the ticket. There was a ticket, but it bore a mysterious symbol; a code which protected the seller because it told him at a glance what the merchandise cost him. But his price to the customer was as much as he could get.

Then along came the one-price store—everything plainly marked, no haggling. Everybody paid the same price for the same article. Surely this was a step ahead. Surely it was fairer to everybody.

And now comes the four-price store, where the customer who pays cash and the customer who carries small packages are at no disadvantage.

Filene's has separated the cost of merchandise and the cost of service in the interests of greater fairness to all. It is our business to serve the public as they wish to be served. If they wish to have a package sent, we ought to send it. If they want charge accounts, we ought to have them—but they ought to pay for the service rather than those who do not use it.

This is not a store which gives something for nothing—and charges for it. Filene's is a four-price store—one price for cash-and-carried merchandise, a slightly higher price for cash-and-sent merchandise; a very little higher for merchandise charged and carried, and a little higher for merchandise charged and sent. Every one gets what he pays for—and pays only for what he gets.

Tub silk blouses, $3.50

A Filene value from the women's shop. The blouses have an equally strong appeal to business women, homemakers, and out-of-doors women. White japsilk, a fine, firm quality; fastened with one huge white pearl button. $3.50.

Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor

Women's mercerized stockings 60c and 75c

Housekeepers generally like to wear mercerized cotton stockings, provided they are elastic.

60c for full fashioned Crest Brand stockings with elastic double garter tops and double heels, toes and soles, in white only; 75c, very finely woven, extra elastic, in black as well as white.

Filene's—mail orders filled—street floor

LINEN-LIKE $7.50

Trim, clean-cut tub frocks of linen-finished cotton. Pockets are even deeper than the apron tunic and large Irish crocheted buttons show just how deep they are. In rose or Danish blue. Sizes 34 to 44.

$7.50

FOULARD and GEORGETTE $14

An all-summer frock because of its cool Georgette sleeves. The little pin-tucked vestee is Georgette, too. Foulards are in refined, small patterns, youthful and pretty. Sizes 34 to 40, in navy blue.

$14

TAFFETA $14

Simple taffeta tunic dresses with cool Georgette pendant sleeves and beaded Georgette vestee. Navy, Danish blue and taupe. Sizes 34 to 44.

$14

$5 TRIMMED HATS

in the street floor shop

Small saucer hats, surrounded by the fashionable wheat trimming.

Smallish, turned-up lisere hats, banded with curled ostrich.

Smart little lisere turbans trimmed with "wheels" of caterpillar straw. And so on, lots of good-looking hats, nearly all different, at $5.

Filene's—mail orders filled—street floor

Women's and misses' cordovan-tan oxfords, $7

Not cordovan, but soft, dull cowhide, in the rich, dark reddish brown shade that looks so well with nearly everything, from a suit to a silk dress.

A good style with clocked stockings. Cuban heels, welt soles.

For women, fifth floor—for misses, fourth floor

Ribbon-bordered silk jersey petticoats, $5

Slim and straight with finely plaited flounces. Continuous ribbon borders prove very effective trimming since they are in bright colors that contrast. The jersey is unusually good weight for $5. Lengths 36 to 40.

MARLOWE AND SOTHERN WILL ACT AGAIN

Famous Artists to Appear Next Fall in Shakespearean Revival

New York, May 2.—After an absence of five years, Julia Marlowe is to return to the stage next season, when she will join her husband, E. H. Sothern, in a series of Shakespearean revivals. They will be seen in New York in October in "Twelfth Night," "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Hamlet," and will afterward make a tour of the larger cities.

While playing with Mr. Sothern in Los Angeles in 1914, Miss Marlowe was taken ill and her condition became so critical that she was hurried to New York on a special train. Under the care of specialists here the actress's condition improved, and to recuperate she went to England with her husband, who had abandoned his tour when she was stricken.

Mr. Sothern appeared alone that following season in "The Two Virtues," and later revived "If I Were King" to raise funds for the Red Cross. Upon the closing night of his New York engagement he announced that he was retiring from the stage. Miss Marlowe, who was in the audience, also came before the footlights to say a last word on the occasion of what, she said, was to be her farewell appearance before an audience.

It was explained today by Lee Shubert, who will manage the Sothern-Marlowe tour next Fall, that when the dual stars then formally retired Miss Marlowe despaired of ever recovering her health sufficiently to permit her to resume acting.

Mr. and Mrs. Sothern have been seldom seen in public in the last two years as both were active in war relief work. The actor spent much time in France directing the activities of the professional entertainers detailed there with the American troops.

Recently he leased a residence in Washington which he planned as a permanent home but, the return of Miss Marlowe's health making possible her return to the stage, the couple yesterday moved into an apartment at No. 130 West Fifty-seventh street to supervise the selection of their cast which will appear in their support here in the Fall.

MRS. CASTLE AGAIN CRIES "NO WEDDING BELLS"

Irene Castle, widow of Vernon Castle, dancer and aviator.

New York, May 2.—Mrs. Irene Castle is scalp hunting today. She gives fair warning that the person who started the gossip, which finally evolved into a public announcement of her marriage next Saturday to Captain Robert H. Treman of Ithaca, had better run to cover.

The widow of Vernon Castle, the dancer who joined the Royal Flying Corps, and was killed by a fall in Texas, February 18, 1918, denied today the report that she and Captain Treman would be married in the Little Church Around the Corner at 4 o'clock Saturday. She said she had no idea of ever marrying Captain Treman, or anyone else, at any time.

This is what Mrs. Castle said in her home at No. 120 Lexington avenue:

"It is all quite disgusting. The absurdity of the report overwhelms me. Such serene aplomb! Certainly I am not to be married to Captain Treman, or to any of the other gentlemen whose names have from time to time been linked with mine. I do not expect to marry anyone, have not the remotest idea of remarriage."

"Do you think Captain Treman responsible for the false report?" Mrs. Castle was asked. She replied:

"No, Captain Treman is a very fine man, and has for years been a dear friend of mine. I should hate to think he would make such a ridiculous statement. About his only relative is his father, and I cannot believe he would assume to know my plans.

"The thing started on the ship Adriatic, on which I sailed from England three weeks ago. Mr. Treman was also on board. We simply renewed an old friendship of many years' standing. Because we were seen walking the decks together for five or six consecutive days, I suppose it must naturally follow that we are engaged. It's the wildest thing I ever heard.

"I came to America to work. And that is what I will do. There is no marriage in my program at all. Next Summer I expect to spend in the mountains with my mother."

STRIKES BY 3 CRAFTS IN BROCKTON

Carpenters, Roofers and Steam Fitters Insist on Demand for More Pay

Brockton, May 2.—About 108 carpenters were still out on a strike today, following refusal of the master builders to grant 85 cents an hour and a 40-hour week. The original demands of the men were for $1 an hour, while the master builders offered 75 cents. The carpenters lowered their demand to 85 cents and the builders raised their offer to 80 cents.

A deadlock followed the failure of both sides to complete a board of arbitration. The carpenters named E. Gerry Brown, former supervisor of small loans, and former Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor; and the builders named William Hanno, a builder. By agreement, a third member was to be chosen by these two. They failed to agree, and the builders requested the removal of Brown, which the carpenters refused.

Other branches of the building trades were still in labor difficulties today. The roofers, who ask $1 an hour, and the steam fitters, demanding $7.50 a day, were out.

The electricians, who have made the same demands as the carpenters, decided at a conference to lower their wage request to 90 cents an hour. Although the master electricians refuse to grant this, there is no strike as yet.

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

by HARRY A. BENWELL

COLONELS LOGAN AND HUME ARE REINSTATED

This is the thirty-third instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30.

Copyright, 1919, by New England Publishing Company.

Colonel Logan, who had been acting as counsel for other officers at Blois, had presented his case to General Pershing, and demanded a hearing. He was informed that the officers he intended to summon as witnesses could not be produced, whereupon he incorporated in his brief summaries of what they would say. A hearing was never granted to either Colonel Logan or Colonel Hume, but both were simply ordered reinstated.

The last act of Colonel Logan at Blois was to win the case of Major Allie Gray, also of the Yankee Division, who was removed for discussing orders. He was also ordered back to the division.

On February 19 the division was reviewed by General Pershing, who pronounced it as one of the finest which he had ever seen, and the equal of any in the American Expeditionary Forces. The truck drivers worked for two days getting the troops up to the reviewing field, some of them being carried twenty miles. General Hale was so pleased with this accomplishment that he wrote the following letter to Colonel Warren E. Sweetser:

COLONEL SWEETSER PRAISED.

"HEADQUARTERS 26TH DIVISION,
"France, February, 1919.

"Colonel Warren E. Sweetser, commanding Train Headquarters and Military Police, Ecommoy, France:

"The successful review of this division on February 19 by the commander-in-chief was made possible only by the extremely efficient co-operation of the personnel of the divisional trains in conveying a large part of the division to and from the review ground.

"I am aware of the serious obstacles that beset the truck drivers in carrying out their work in this connection, and have learned with gratification of their loyal, untiring and effective efforts in surmounting these obstacles. It is at times like these, when such unusual, unselfish and arduous work is demanded to insure success, that the mettle of the soldier is tried, and in this case the prompt and loyal response to the demand shows that the test was met in every instance.

"I take this occasion, also, to congratulate you and the officers and men belonging to the trains of this division upon their expert skill in so long maintaining the trains in a serviceable condition, and upon their labor and care in keeping them in a clean condition. And their discipline and efficiency in those respects are equaled by their careful observance of road regulations.

"I congratulate and thank you all.

"HARRY C. HALE,
"Major-General, United States Army, commanding."

General Pershing made an extremely thorough review, after which he was entertained at a division show. His opinion of the entire affair was expressed in an order issued by Major-General Hale two days later, which read:—

CONGRATULATIONS FROM HALE.

"HEADQUARTERS 26TH DIVISION, AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES.
"France, February 21, 1919.

"General Orders No. 15:

"1. The division commander congratulates the officers and men of this command upon the splendid example of soldierly appearance and efficiency presented by the division at the review by the Commander-in-Chief on the 19th instant.

"2. The magnificent spectacle of the entire division massed as a unit; the remarkably alert, clean-cut and healthy appearance of the men; the uniformity and neatness of the equipment; the inspiring effect of the massed band, and, finally, the evidence of training manifested in the thrilling march past, all were noted and repeatedly praised in warm terms by the Commander-in-Chief, who desired that his satisfaction and admiration be communicated to the command.

"3. The division commander desires that this order be read to the command at the first formation after its receipt.

"By command of Major-General Hale.

"DUNCAN K. MAJOR, JR.,
"Chief of Staff."

The attention of the members of the division, which lagged somewhat after the review, was spurred by the military and athletic tournament. After this was over, however, every one once more devoted his thoughts to home.

At last, toward the latter part of March, definite word came down that the division would begin to embark by the first of April. Great was the rejoicing. The day of days was at hand.

In the meantime Brigadier-General John H. Sherburne, who had been commanding a colored brigade, was returned to the 51st Field Artillery. A number of other former 26th officers, including Colonel Thorndike Howe, who had been divisional postmaster, were also returned to the line.

NEW HAMPSHIRE WANTS COLORS OF 303D F. A.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 2.—New Hampshire wants the colors of the 303d Field Artillery awarded to the State of Maine.

Acting for Governor John W. Bartlett, Adjutant-General Henry Howard of the Granite State complained to Lieutenant-Colonel Patch and other officers and announced that New Hampshire would make determined effort to secure the standards.

Complaining bitterly that New Hampshire with nearly fifty per cent. of its entire population represented in some branch of service had nothing in the way of memorials, and that the 103rd Infantry colors went to Maine, Mr. Howard started for Washington where he will appeal to the War Department.

This "History of the Yankee Division" will be published in book form by the Cornhill Company. There will be blank form pages in each book, whereby every soldier can make a permanent record of the dates and events of his service in the division. It will be on sale at all book stores, on the newestands and at the hotels and clubs.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

MAJOR FRED H. ROGERS.

Major Fred H. Rogers was born in Boston thirty-nine years ago. He joined Company A, 6th Regiment, M. V. M., in 1901 and was promoted until he became first lieutenant in 1914. For many years he was one of the best shots of Company A's rifle team. In June, 1916, he trained recruits at Framingham for Mexican border service.

In August, 1917, he was transferred to Company M of Milford and later was re-assigned to Westfield as General Cole's aide. He sailed for France October 2, 1917, as first lieutenant of Company B, a motor truck company of the 101st Ammunition Train. After attending the motor transportation school of instruction at Meaux, France, he returned to the train. In June, 1918, he was promoted to a captaincy and given command of Company D of the motor battalion.

On September 8 he was promoted to major and assigned to the horse battalion of the same organization. He was transferred to the 42d (Rainbow) Division January 16, 1919, then with the Army of Occupation, in command of the motor battalion of the 117th Ammunition Train.

As this division was about to prepare for return home Major Rogers was ordered to report to the Third Regular Army Division. He was assigned to the Third Ammunition Train of that division. Late in March he was sent to an artillery school near Dijon, France, as infantry observer. He was instructed to report back May 1.

Major Rogers resides at No. 11 First street, Melrose. He is married.

Listen, Boston!
I'm betting that you know the best Almond Bar when you taste it

WHEN you buy an Almond Bar you want just as good chocolate, just as good almonds, as in those beautiful $1.25 packages.

Gold stamping, satin ribbon, and hand packing, and all that, cost a lot of money. It's worth it.

Some people say my Yellow Package is homely—that may be, but it's inexpensive, and you don't eat the package, you eat what's inside the package.

The chocolate and almonds in the $1.25 box can't be any better than what's in my Touraine Bar.

You won't find any other almond bar made of the real French kind of chocolate—or any other almond bar chock-full of big, sweet, crisp almonds from Italy and Spain.

The process is mine. I invented and perfected the automatic machinery for it.

That machinery makes it possible for me to give you the Touraine Bar at the same price you pay for ordinary ones.

I'm making 1 000,000 Touraine Almond Bars every day.

That speaks for itself.

When you see the Yellow Package, remember I made it different so you can pick it right up and not be afraid it's one of those you don't know a thing about.

BERT FORD'S TALES OF THE YANKEE DIVISION

In Chapter XXIV of his "Tales of the Y. D." today, Mr. Ford says that the first assault made by a "flying wedge" of German shock troops on Seicheprey was a reverse for the battalion of the 102d Infantry guarding the town, but that the Connecticut troops quickly rallied and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy when they attacked again the same day.

He says that the operations at Apremont Woods and Seicheprey, compared to later operations, must be classified as "serious raids" and that they steadied the Yankee Division and showed the metal that was in it.

Mr. Ford gives a vivid description of the ceremony attending the decoration of the colors of the 104th Infantry by the French at Bouch in the Toul sector. The 104th, an all-Massachusetts regiment, was the first American regiment thus honored by a foreign power, and, on the same day, Chaplain De Valle of New Bedford and Chaplain Danker of Worcester, with many soldiers, were awarded the Croix de Guerre.

Just as the French general pinned the medal on the blouse of Private James Corbett of Somerville, that day, Corbett, who had left a hospital cot, wounded, toppled over in a faint. The strain and excitement of receiving his honor with the gang in the field had proved too much for the patient, but he quickly revived.

By BERT FORD.

Chapter XXIV.

Copyright, 1919, by the Boston American.

DThe Yankee Division did not take part in a major operation until it relieved the Second Division at the Marne in July. In the Chemin-des-Dames, where it received its baptism, it conducted and repulsed minor raids.

In the Toul sector, the fights in the Apremont Woods and at Seicheprey in April, 1918, were the most serious actions in which any American units had been engaged up to that time, but in the light of later battles, these two early engagements, on a front not far from the birthplace of Joan of Arc, must be classified as serious raids and nothing more.

When the threatened investigation is conducted in Washington, regular army witnesses are almost certain to testify that Seicheprey was an American defeat and it must, in historical accuracy and fairness, be so recorded, so far as the first thrust was concerned. But when the German "flying circus" struck a second time that day, they received a hot reception. It was no reverse then. Raids, on every front, are give-and-take propositions.

Seicheprey, a ruined village, lay in an exposed position. Fifteen hundred Germans, forming a flying wedge of shock troops, attacked in daylight, captured or killed our outposts and machine gun pointers, remained in the village to clean up and carried off a number of prisoners, including the doctor and his crew commanding the battalion hospital.

NO MATCH FOR YANKEES.

The battalion of the 102d Infantry, chiefly Connecticut men, which had been guarding the village, stiffened its front and was reinforced to meet the second attack that afternoon. The first attack had the effect of a stinging blow between the eyes, but the men from the Nutmeg State recovered and pitched into the Heinies with the fury of tigers.

They fought the seasoned enemy troops with rifle, pistol, bayonet and grenade. They fought them hand-to-hand in the streets and in ruined houses, cellars and dugouts. They fought with their fists and they drove the enemy back. On that day the Huns got their first real taste of the strength, agility and courage of Yankee troops at close quarters. They discovered that they were no match for our fellows with steel and in rough-and-tumble tactics.

At Seicheprey the Germans laid their first death traps for the Americans. They fastened grenades to the bodies of dead Americans and adjusted wires so that those who buried the bodies might be maimed or killed. They left behind, in conspicuous places, attractive boxes, which, if picked up, would blow the finder into eternity. The New Englanders in that scrimmage, learned a lot about the artifices of modern warfare as practiced by the Boches, and they learned, too, to be wary of German methods and 'souvenirs.'

GERMAN LOSSES HEAVY.

In the Seicheprey encounter the German losses were heavier than ours in dead, judging from the number of boche buried by our men. But they claimed to have captured more prisoners than our units did, a claim which they backed up by sending over a group photograph of the men taken.

Apremont and Seicheprey steadied the Yankee Division and showed the metal that was in it. In later operations on that front the Yankees always had the better of the argument. They became masters of No Man's Land and the Germans had a wholesome respect for our artillery.

In the Apremont Woods fight the 104th Infantry, an all-Massachusetts regiment, made up of increments from the Second, Sixth and Eighth Regiments of the National Guard, helped the French repulse a determined attack by German storm troops. The fight lasted three days and the enemy was trounced.

COLORS OF 104TH DECORATED.

The French army authorities were so pleased with the work of the 104th Infantry that it decorated its colors. It was the first American regiment thus honored by a foreign army.

The French general, in conferring the decoration, said:

"This regiment showed during the battles, April 10, 11 and 13, the greatest audacity and a fine spirit of sacrifice. [illegible] to very violent bombardments and attacked by very important German forces, it succeeded in checking a dangerous advance, and retook at the point of the bayonet, with vigorous energy the few demolished trenches from which it had fallen back at the first assault."

The men of the 104th cited for bravery were decorated that day also. The ceremony was held on a Sunday afternoon in a hollow back of the [illegible] on the outskirts of Boucq where divisional headquarters had been located. German and American artillery were active. The boom of cannon floated over the ridge.

SCENE IMPRESSIVE.

The sky had been overcast, but the sun broke through the clouds during the ceremony, adding color to a scene that will never be forgotten by those of us who were lucky enough to witness it.

The honored regiment was drawn up in hollow square and the file of heroes was so long that it stretched clear across the meadow. At the head of the line stood the Rev. John B. De Valle of New Bedford, who had rescued wounded on his back under fire, and at the other end was the Rev. Walton S. Danker of Worcester, who had administered to wounded and dying like Father De Valle. Chaplain Danker was killed by a shell some weeks later. He and Father De Valle were the first army chaplains in the A. E. F. decorated. With the others in line that day they received the Croix de Gurre for distinguished service.

"Six Salvation Army lassies and a sprinkling of French peasant girls and civilians were among the spectators on the hill. The regimental band played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise," and heavy artillery continued to boom in the distance.

The French general passed smartly down the line accompanied by General Edwards and staff. As the French officer pinned a medal on the breast of each Bay State soldier he congratulated him and shook his hand, and General Edwards had a word of praise also.

WOUNDED HERO FAINTS.

"Cheer up, boys, don't look so solemn," said General Edwards to one youngster who looked as if he was head pallbearer at a funeral. "This is nothing to be downcast over. Smile. It's a proud day for us all, an event of historical importance. Remember lad it's the first time in history that an American regiment has had its colors decorated by a European army."

The men took the cue, forgot their stage fright, grinned broadly. Midway in the line, pale and tense, stood Private James Corbett of Somerville. Just as the French general finished pinning the Croix de Guerre on his blouse, Corbett fell backwards in a dead faint. It was a dramatic touch.

He was wounded and had insisted on leaving his cot in the hospital to receive his honor on the field with the others, and the strain and excitement proved too much. But he was himself soon again and the centre of an admiring group at the close of the ceremony.

There were grim gaps in the line marking the places of dead and wounded heroes of the regiment. The posthumous awards were sent to relatives at home and those for the wounded were distributed to them in the hospital later that day.

During the regimental review a lieutenant from another regiment standing in the sidelines, said out loud:

"The Germans can never lick a crowd like that or lower that flag!"

And they didn't.

FIRST THOUGHT OF MOTHER.

Curious to ascertain the uppermost thought of a man just decorated, [illegible] Private J. H. Galagher what his first thought was after the French general fastened the medal to his breast, and Galagher's reply was:

"I thought how proud my mother would be to hear it."

[illegible] suffering no matter [illegible] was able to [illegible] mother love. It was [illegible] beautiful [illegible] at the front and [illegible] ever so many ways.

In those two April fights, which occurred so close to Concord and Lexington day, the youngsters from home showed the stuff that was in them. They went in with the pluck and tenacity of veterans. They did all sorts of heroic stunts. They made sacrifices to rescue wounded comrades. Men of the 104th Regiment band were among those decorated that Sunday, as were men from the first aid units.

SHOWED UNBEATABLE GRIT.

The musicians turned litter-bearers and some were killed and wounded. The leader of the band hitched [illegible] his wrists in order to hold his end of the stretcher after the hands had become so blistered and his fingers so stiff and sore that he was unable to grip the handles.

But it was the spirit of America [illegible] which the raids at Apremont and Seicheprey revealed a grit unbeatable, as later operations proved.

BOSTON GETS $3 TAX LIMIT INCREASE

House Passes Peters Bill to Third Reading by Big Majority

The House, by an overwhelming vote has passed to a third reading the bill [illegible] the city of Boston to increase its tax limit $3 f[illegible] year 1919.

Mr. Ha[illegible] of Boston was unsuccessful in an attempt to have the bill amended so that the increase would have been but $2.

Mr. Lane of Boston moved to amend the bill to forbid increases in the price of gas and electricity so that it would apply to the sale of gas to general consumers instead of only [illegible] and commercial users. He was defeated.

Mr. Brown of Woburn, who said he spoke in behalf of owners of property on the west shore of the Mystic lakes, protested against the bill to enable the Metropolitan Park Commission to protect the banks of those lakes.

He said that these private owners have made their property ornamental and object to having it taken from them by the State under the power of eminent domain the bill would confer on the commission.

Mr. Baker of Arlington, in charge of the bill, told of the pollution of the lakes and the Aberjona river and of the consequent need of action by the State.

Mr. Kneeland of Winchester described the beauty of the lakes as an asset that the State should preserve and Mr. Earley of Newton expressed the belief that any member who had seen the lakes would be willing to support the bill with its appropriation of $10,000.

The bill was passed to a third reading almost unanimously.

Debate on the bill to pro[illegible] the use of the zone fare [illegible] stated was interrupted [illegible] adjournment.

"Ought not to pass" was reported on an order to investigate the methods of the bank examiner in examining the books and savings banks and [illegible] bank companies.

"Ought to pass," was reported on the order for the highway commission to estimate the cost of the proposed Pilgrim highway to the Fore river bridge.

On the other hand officials of the railway company have filed a counter complaint, charging that the tight skirts cause undue delay of the cars. In addition they say the motormen merely do their duty in watching the mirrors to make certain passengers are on the cars before starting.

ACCUSES ARMY OFFICERS OF BRUTALITY

Men Filled With Hatred of the Service, Says Chaplain Rollins

Inhuman and brutal treatment of privates by certain officers of the American Expeditionary Force was charged by Chaplain Lyman R. Rollins of the 101st Infantry, 26th Division, speaking before 500 Episcopalians at the Copley-Plaza at the Spring meeting of the Episcopalian Club of Massachusetts.

In consequence of such treatment the men had been filled with "hatred and disdain for the service," he said.

FIVE CHAPLAINS GUESTS.

J. Q. Adams, president of the club, presided, and among the guests were Bishop Lawrence and five chaplains recently returned from service at the front: Chaplains Rollins, James Thayer Addison of the 1st Gas Regiment, Malcolm Endicott Peabody of the 102nd Field Artillery, 26th; Murray W. Dewart of the 101st Field Artillery, 26th, and H. Boyd Edwards of the 101st Engineers, [illegible].

Chaplain Rollins told his audience that he had learned what sacrifice meant by seeing others sacrifice. [illegible] also learned what the church of [illegible] every [illegible] woman be [illegible] as willing to sacrifice for [illegible] the American soldiers had sacrificed for their country. After describing heroic acts by men of the 101st he proceeded: "I admire Colonel Logan, [illegible] he was a man who had a heart for his men. I heard him say, 'These men are committed to me as a sacred trust and I do not [illegible] to sacrifice one life unnecessarily.'"

OPPOSES BIG ARMY.

"Do we want a large standing army and universal military service? From my experience in France I say no. Only men who can produce the goods should be in charge—men who are human and not brutal, who have feeling for the enlisted men, who look [illegible] not so much fodder for guns, but as freeborn American citizens.

"It is a pitiful thing that men are being discharged filled with hatred and disdain for the service, not because they underwent hardships, but because they felt that those over there in authority were inhuman and brutal. I do not believe that we shall need a large standing army. We shall want military training rather than service when the War Department is cleaned out and reformed."

MINISTER BREAKS RECORD BY LEAVING FORTUNE

Fairbury, Neb., May 2.—Rev. George W. Dungan, eighty-three, who died at his home in Springfield, Ill., recently, was a pioneer Methodist minister of this part of Nebraska, and what is more astonishing to many here, left a small fortune. He is one of the few preachers in the mid-West that is known to have left an estate of more than $100,000.

Coming here fifty years ago, he bought a section of land for $1.25 an acre. He sold it January 1 last for $150 an acre. His fortune was estimated at $125,000.

AMERICAN RED CROSS AIDING JUGO SLAVS

Peoples of Balkans Being Taught Sanitary Methods by Physicians

Belgrade, May 2.—There has been an American invasion of Jugo-Slav territory. In every city from Durazzo to Strumitza, and reaching from Belgrade to Zagreb, the jewel of Jugo-Slavia, American Red Cross officers, doctors and nurses and representatives of the Food Administration and of the Army, may be seen.

All are engaged in the big task of feeding and clothing the people in the areas which have suffered most by the war. The United States has been likened to a bountiful mother caring for a flock of small children—the children being the many Balkan countries comprising what one day will be greater Jugo-Slavia.

At a hundred points in Serbia, Montenegro, Albania, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Croatia the American Red Cross is giving the people a taste of American generosity. Food, clothing, shoes and medicine are being distributed to the destitute. American doctors and nurses are caring for the sick and wounded. By their work and their example these Americans are inculcating in the Slav new ideas of thrift, self-help, cleanliness and honesty, which must have a lasting influence.

The population of these countries is made up of Serbians, Croatians and many diverse races. The intense religious and party differences that have existed for years have been forgotten in a common enthusiasm for the liberty and freedom of Jugo-Slavia. The individual ambitions of the different Slav countries have been sacrificed in a desire to keep Italy from obtaining Dalmatia or any part of the Eastern Adriatic coast. The eyes of all are turned to President Wilson and America, whom they regard as the greatest sponsors for the unity and integrity of the Slavic nations.

"Old Hen" Down in West Virginia in Demand

Charleston, W. Va., May 2.—The "old hen" is causing streaks of worry to show on the faces of West Virginians who have the enforcement of the dry laws in their care.

For "old hen," be it known, is having great vogue in this State of the great thirst. Word comes from Gilmore and Calhoun counties that the farmers there are peddling more "old hen" than milk.

"Old hen" bids fair to become extremely popular in other parts of the country after July 1. It has the right kick according to those who have partaken of it. And, besides, it has no excise tax.

THOUSANDS OF SAILORS TO GET PAY AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, May 2.—Thousands of "gobs" living west of here but east of the Denver district will be discharged from service and paid here, under the plan of the Navy Department in naming St. Louis a naval demobilization point.

Two paymasters together with a sufficient clerical force to handle the work of demobilization, have already arrived here and are in readiness to discharge and pay the sailors.

It is believed by Navy Department officials that if the men are discharged and paid at points nearer their homes there will be less opportunity for swindling them and that they will be more likely to go home at once.

WOMEN VOTERS IN U. S. TOTAL 15,500,000

Iowa Adds 600,000 to Suffragists Who Can Ballot for President

New York, May 2.—The closing of the legislative sessions of the Spring of 1919 stresses a long list of presidential suffrage victories scored in the State Legislatures since January, 1919, under the direction of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

Indiana began it. Iowa has just closed it by a House vote of 84 to 2 for presidential suffrage in the closing hours of the season on April 19. The Senate had already passed the bill on April 4 by a vote of 38 to 3.

The Iowa victory adds 600,000 more women to the total over twenty-one who reside in States where women are entitled to vote for the next President, and brings that total up to fifteen and one half millions.

It also adds thirteen electoral votes to the number in which the choice of women have a voice, making a total of 302 electoral votes.

It is the twenty-ninth State in the Union to confer presidential suffrage on women.

Exclusive of Vermont, the number of women twenty-one and over affected by legislative grants in seven States is 4,350,000.

WARM GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER, JURY FINDS

Former Soldier Convicted for Second Time in Causing Death of Young Girl.

St. Albans, Vt., May 2.—Robert Warm, ex-soldier, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in Franklin County Court today, at the end of his second trial on the charge of killing fourteen-year-old Jennie Hemmingway, his sweetheart.

Warm, whose hopes had been high, showed the first trace of emotion as the verdict was read, and seemed about to fall, but quickly recovered and sat down between his attorneys, wearing the same bored smile which has characterized him throughout the proceedings. The accused man did not have a friend or relative with him during the ordeal.

The sentence which may be imposed is from ten to fourteen years. Sentence will not be announced until next week. Counsel for Warm indicated that they would make further efforts to save him from prison and sought to attack the verdict.

Warm was charged with slaying the schoolgirl on a Summer night in 1917 while they were wandering along a street not far from her home. The body was found late at night by the roadside, bearing marks indicating violence.

Warm was convicted of manslaughter at his first trial, but the finding of new evidence had given his lawyers hope that he could be cleared altogether. His defence was that he was assaulted by hoodlums while in the company of the Hemmingway girl, and that they separated the couple and killed the girl.

Warm was remanded to Franklin County Jail. His sentence will be served in the State prison at Windsor.

Which Sort of a Man Are You?

A man of blood and iron, who gets up feeling keen, active and alert—a man of stamina and force—who will forge ahead in the business and political life of the country today?

Are You Such a Man?

Or a man who lacks iron in his blood—who has no energy, force nor strength to meet the problems of the day and wishes he could sleep until noon?

Look around at the men you meet every day. You can tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood—they are the strong, healthy fellows, vigorous in body and mind—successful in whatever they undertake. One glance is enough to put the others in the weakling class.

That irritable twitch, that fit of despondency, that dizzy, fearful feeling—these are the sort of signals nature gives to tired, listless folks when the blood is starving for strength-giving iron. Iron is absolutely essential to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without iron there can be no strong, red-blooded men, and, unless this iron is obtained from the foods we eat, it must be supplied in some form that is easily absorbed and assimilated. Nuxated Iron, by enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy and endurance into the whole system. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired, next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength, power and endurance of delicate, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time in many instances.

OH THAT WAS ONLY A ROOMER

SCHOOLBOYS TO HAVE A BUSY SATURDAY

The schedule for tomorrow's games promises plenty of excitement for the schoolboys on the ball field. All the Boston schools will be in action and the Suburban League will present four of the best games of the season

The latter teams will be evenly matched, as the four first division outfits are up against each other, while the second divisioners will cross bats

The game between Newton and Medford should be the best one on the list. Captain Sawyer and Jim Prior will be the opposing twirlers and a great battle should result.

Sanford, Gillis and the two Priors are the boys who will cause a lot of trouble for Newton's star pitcher. Through the loss of Otis Jackson. Jack Gillis will play at short and John Prior will be behind the bat.

Medford has been playing great ball and it looks as if it will be the team to stop Newton's string of victories.

The game on Old Tech Field, between Brookline and Everett, with Harry Mallowney and John McGonigle doing the twirling, is bound to be well worth watching

Everett has lost but one game so far, and, although Coach Parker's boys have dropped two they form a fighting team and should give Coach Kierney's nine a hard rub. A win for Brookline will put it in second place

Malden and Cambridge Latin, the two cellar members, will mix on Malden Field. The loser will be at the head of the league, reading from the bottom

Coach Lee McDonald has a good machine but it seems to be followed by a jinx. Its infield with McGowan, Zarakos, Cole and Dambrosio is a good one, while Outfielders O'Connor, Curry and Thomas are fast

If it could shake the jinx it would be a real good team. Glennon and Hap Herlihy will be the opposing pitchers.

Somerville should have little trouble coming through with a victory over Rindge Tech. Cleo O'Donnell's team, although not very strong in the outfield, has a fast infield, and, if it gives Steve Patten decent support, all should be well. Kelly or Day will do the twirling for Rindge, with Sanders on the receiving end

Most of the locals will go out of town tomorrow. Commerce will play at Melrose, English High will make a trip to Wakefield and Dorchester will cross bats with Mark Devlin's team on Columbus Oval, Danvers.

SCHOOLBOY SPORTS

Ballou, kid brother of Johnny Ballou the Tufts star twirler, although only fourteen years old and a 100-pounder is right there when it comes to pitching. He has two years more at Medford High and should develop into one of the best southpaws in the league.

* * *

Thomas, right fielder for Cambridge Latin, isn't fussy with side of the plate he hits from. With a southpaw in the box, he swings from the third base side and with a right-hander on duty, he shifts over to the left side of the plate

Ginney, rightfully a candidate for the receiving position, has been given a tryout at shortstop on account of the recent poor showing of both Leonardi and Daniels

Dambrosio is a great addition to Cambridge Latin's infield. He plays a neat game at the hot corner and hits with it.

John and Jim Prior are the newest thing in brother batteries in the Suburban League. The two Medford boys likewise form a combination hard to beat.

* * *

John McGonigle has been in the box for Everett High in every game this season

* * *

Sam Best, who holds down the third sack for Somerville High, is there with the goods. The way he scoops them up and throws from any position is a pretty sight to see.

* * *

Captains Paul Healy, Paul Lieberfarb and John Feeney of Boston Latin, Commerce and English High, respectively, will be in charge of the candidates for the outdoor track teams at their schools, as the coaches are too busy with the ball nines to give their attention to anything else

Smiling Abe Kenny, the first sacker on Brookline High, is a live wire. He pulls wild throws out of the sky and digs them out of the dirt. It's all the same to him as long as he can reach them

Marty Lomasney, centre fielder on Dan O'Flaherty's team, is showing great form. He must inherit his "pep" from Uncle Martin

Captain O'Connor is performing in good shape for Cambridge Latin. He's a sure fielder and his work at the bat is also classy.

Dan O'Flaherty's team has been given quite a shake-up. There are five new men, Smalley, Carr, McDonald, Fitilone and Burke, in the line-up.

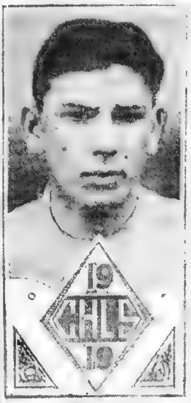
Middletown, Ct., May 2.—The Wesleyan and Trinity tennis teams were slated to clash in a duel meet on the former's courts here this afternoon.



WARREN COTE,
CAMBRIDGE LATIN SCHOOL
BASEBALL STAR

"FAT" Cote is one of the shining lights of the Cantabs infield. His fielding and hitting is one of the features of every game. This is his second year on the nine, he having made the team in his first year. During the next two years at the school he should turn out to be one of the stars of the Suburban League

K. OF C. BOXING BOUTS AT LONDON'S BIG CLUB

The National Sporting Club of London has donated the use of its gymnasium one night each week to the Knights of Columbus and Bob Warner, former champion speed skater of New England, is conducting boxing exhibitions there for the entertainment of American soldiers spending their furlough time in England's metropolis.

Warner appears to be very popular with London newspapers and the Knights of Columbus athletic activities are frequently referred to in their columns.

Friday BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS May 2

WILD MATINEE GOES TO N. Y.; TALLY: 7-3

The defeat that's in the air [illegible] Boston hasn't [illegible] Sox [illegible] Fenway [illegible] they have [illegible] and [illegible] ties ahead of them.

The defeat [illegible] in the air hasn't cheered [illegible] the fans a bit either. After [illegible] the braves kick away a quarter of [illegible] it was an awful strain to [illegible] at the champion box [illegible] New Yorkers with a [illegible] baseball.

The defeat that's in the air hasn't discouraged [illegible] correspondent, either [illegible]. Defeats come just as regularly as bill collectors, but finally everything gets evened up.

Those [illegible] Sox didn't look like [illegible] team at [illegible]. They were [illegible] Mogridge, a left-hander [illegible] in the eighth. They [illegible] that [illegible] days that [illegible] sooner or later. But not [illegible].

SOX TOSS IT AWAY.

The [illegible] wide open in the ninth after two were [illegible]. Never as far [illegible] remember has a Red Sox [illegible] that ultimate [illegible] after a surge [illegible] the eighth [illegible] get away [illegible] one of the [illegible] games ever seen.

[illegible] the best batter [illegible] neither of the Yankees [illegible] out of [illegible] when the ninth came around. [illegible] Lamar came up to bat after [illegible] had landed on an [illegible] had swung [illegible] two-base [illegible] past Vitt. [illegible] missed entirely. There were two out when all this happened.

[illegible] passed Lamar, apparently trying [illegible] bad balls. He [illegible] one over. Lamar was on [illegible] Frank [illegible] Baker [illegible].

The [illegible] King may be old and everything like that, but he sure is a [illegible] proposition than a substitute. He [illegible] the first ball pitched and knocked off a couple of counters. [illegible] could pitch and [illegible] nobody covering [illegible].

NOT LIKE OLD BAND.

Nobody ever saw anything like that at Fenway Park, especially an uncovered base on a throw. But that's the kind of a day it was. The Sox seemed to [illegible] apart while being greeted by the [illegible] gang.

Perhaps they were too anxious to make good, perhaps the ferocious argument the Yanks put up in the eighth knocked down the pile of blocks. Anyway, that's what transpired.

While we're on the subject we can't help remarking that yesterday [illegible] material for thought about [illegible] heralded great season. It was a perfect day right up to game time. The Sox had returned home after a victorious opening on the road.

Everything pointed to an enormous crowd. Yet a scant 12,000 were present. And that includes the guests that every opening day naturally attracts.

FANS A LITTLE "FUSSY."

As we see it there was a wild desire for baseball the first few days. But now it has resolved itself down to a point where a team has to produce the goods to be attractive.

To date there has been plenty of enthusiasm on the part of the fans, very [illegible] on the part of the players. Though yesterday's battle was hard fought and close and always doubtful, it didn't have a bit more pep than the contests of last season which everybody in baseball admits was an off year.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Joe Rivers vs. George Robinson, at Lewiston, Me.

Johnny Wilson vs. Cyclone Jim Scott, at Brockton.

Battling Levinsky vs. Johnny Howard, at Bayonne, N. J.

Young Ahearn, who has been making his home in South Boston, will not go to England unless he receives a more definite offer than the one now in the possession of Joe McCarthy, his manager. The English promoters want Ahearn to sail for Liverpool May 14.

The boxing game is booming throughout the British Isles. Before the war Ahearn was in England and made a big hit by his work there. At one time it was planned to match him with Georges Carpentier.

Montreal promoters want Ahearn to come up and box Jack Britton May 19. His injured hand, however, will not permit him to perform in the ring for another month.

Freddie Madden and Phil Christie have signed to exchange blows in the semi-final tussle to the Britt-Valger contest at the Armory A. A., May 13.

Young Sacco today hurled a challenge at Charley Parker. Sacco has resumed training and will be prepared to clash with the South End puncher in two weeks. Parker has been laid up with an injured hand, but will soon be back in the ring.

WATCH C. MACK, IS ADVICE OF FULLERTON.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

A word anent Cornelius MacGillicuddy—Connie Mack.

He has put together another team to which the attention of the baseball world is respectfully called before it is completed. He has a ball club composed of players that no one else wanted, which is liable to upset all the dope and stand the American League upside down.

Mack seems to be the master constructor of all baseball. He has a team which, on paper, does not loom up large, but which on the ball field looks like a million dollars.

In his infield he has Burns, a Detroit castoff; Shannon, a collegian, who was supposed to be second best of two brothers; Dugan, a fast, temperamental, rather brilliant youngster, and Thomas, who was not good enough for Boston.

He has Kopp, another castoff, in left; Tillie Walker in centre and Bobby Roth in right. He has Perkins and McAvoy as catchers and Scott Perry, Johnson and Geary as the basis of his pitching staff.

The team does not loom large on paper, but out on the ball field it looks great. It is hustling, fighting, and rushing the attack all the time and it makes the old dope look a bit sick.

PERRY HAS EVERYTHING.

Sott Perry looks to be one of the four best pitchers in the American League. He is a powerful, deep chested, easy moving fellow, with a tremendous lot of power, a flashing curve and a lot of speed

Watching him the other day he looked to me, in appearance, movement, style, and in every ball he pitched, to resemble Jack Stivetts, who was one of the greatest pitchers of the old days of baseball.

I strolled back through the stands and met Joe Kelley, who was one of the great old-timers.

"Who does he move like, Joe?" I inquired.

"Stivetts," he said without a moment's hesitancy. "Just the same build, action and curves."

Pretty soon Perry got into trouble. Instead of slowing up and taking his time about pitching, he began hurrying, pitching as fast as the catcher returned the ball to him and he lost his game

"He is Stivetts all over again," said Kelly. "He even gets excited and hurries his pitching just as old Jack did."

YOUNG PERKINS BOOSTED.

Incidentally, in discussing Perry there is a young catcher with the Mackmen who is liable to become a big figure in baseball. He moves like another Tim Donohue and who handles the toughest kind of pitching with ease.

He made a play the other day in New York that was a peach. The ball was a curve, pitched low and inside the plate to a left-handed batter. The runner on first was going.

Perkins dug the ball out of the dirt, made the throw straight over the back of the batter and came within inches of throwing out the runner on an impossible play

The Yankees also have flashed a young catcher who, with the exception of physical build, appears to be the equal of Perkins. That is Muddy Ruel, a hustling, gingery kid who is going to do the bulk of the catching for the club this year.

He will remind you somewhat of Red Dooin at his best, or Ray Schalk as he is now, and, unless something untoward hits him, he is going to be one of the great young catchers of the generation.

BULLSHEVIKI CONFECTIONERY.

OPENING your mail these fine war-taxed mornings is something like smoking a dynamite cigarette in a forest fire. The Bullsheviki are turning the parcel post into a four-zoned arsenal. A yard and a half of Bullsheviki confectionery—bomb-bombs—were discovered in the atrocity department of the New York postoffice. They were immediately popped into water, which is the worst insult you can slip a Bullshevik.

All the bomb-bombs were addressed to prominent citizens, which is nothing unusual. Any citizen would feel prominent near a bomb. He'd feel twice as prominent near two bombs.

Opening a love letter loaded with kisses and T. N. T. is a poor way of spending the Summer.

These Bullsheviki tid-bits look very stylish until they're opened. Then your relatives discover that the tid-bits were more bits than tid.

The best way to open a bundle of Bullsheviki bomb-bombs is to let it stay closed. If you don't, those chocolate coated hand grenades will blow you right past sixteen straw hat seasons into a No. 6⅞ halo.

A halo makes a beautiful hatpiece and is about the only headgear that a married man's wife doesn't assist him to pick. Still, it's an invalid zephyr that doesn't puff somebody good.

This Bullshevik business of converting the parcel post into an ammunition train is going to discount curiosity on the part of fourth-class postmasters. The gimlet-beaked bird who pokes his nose into everybody's three-cent stamped business is liable to do it once to numerous and wake up in Postmaster's Hades.

That's the place where all letters are written in low Zulu or garbled Hottentot. They're easy to steam open but hard to read, which is the reason why it's Hades for a postmaster. Easily.

IF the Bullshevik idea is perfected, the breakfast food birds will sell us packages primed with trinitro-cellulose, happy brides will shimmy up the aisle to the tune of a package of Chinese shooting crackers. Charlotte russes will be equipped with fast burning fuses and French pastry will explode on contact.

SURGEONS will blast instead of operating and any grapefruit that fails to detonate will be a duo. If any married couple live long enough to get gray haired, which is about three weeks under the Bullshevik dynasty, they will celebrate the nitro-glycerine anniversary of their wedding by strafing each other with bouquets of T. N. T. mixed with dynamite blossoms. Life will be one explosion after another with another in between. There will be no excuse for carrying ear trumpets

THE only flareback to the Bullshevik method of packing love letters is that no jury will stay parked in the box while a halibut-eyed lawyer tries to read Sweetie's letter to Hon or Hon's epistles to Sweetie. A bomb tied with a baby blue ribbon is still a bomb. And a jury of twelve good men just naturally hate to stroll through the ceiling and leave a jury of twelve good widows waiting for 'em to rattle home to a cold supper so that they can knock the twelve good gents colder than the supper.

Letter carriers will have to anchor off Gravesend Bay with the other ammunition boats, and no guy will approach a mail box until he is sure that it isn't loaded. Any bird who gets a letten postage due will have to stay in quarantine until the letter blows him out of it.

DOUGHBUYS ARE DOING BIT BY GOWDY FUND

The Hank Gowdy testimonial fund will be a tremendous success if the baseball fans of Boston and New England give it the same whole-hearted support it is receiving from service men

The Doughboys are particularly eager to see that the American's plan to show some little appreciation for what Hank Gowdy has done for us all goes over the top. This is but natural, as Gowdy went to France as a member of the 42d Division, better known as the Rainbow Division.

There were not any easy jobs for the men of the Rainbow Division once they arrived overseas. Like our own gallant 26th, the Rainbow Division was rushed to front-line duty. And it remained with the combat units until the armistice was signed.

HIT .400 OVER THERE.

Gowdy was in the thick of the fighting in all the big battles from the time Uncle Sam threw his strength into the war until the power of Germany had been crushed

Soldiers, who have fought in France, realize the great sacrifices made by Gowdy. And they want to see him given a fitting testimonial.

The kids continue to [illegible]. They have the true spirit and have sent in their pennies, nickles and dimes to Hon. Joseph H. O'Neil, Federal Trust Company, No. 85 Devonshire street, treasurer of the fund.

By giving to the Gowdy testimonial you prove to every American boy, who risked his all overseas, that you are behind him and have not forgotten the sacrifices he made for us all

GIVE! GIVE!! GIVE!!!

Let the slogan of the Gowdy campaign be "Give!" Give as freely as you did when called upon for funds when our liberty was in peril. And when you send in your subscription accompany it by a letter suggesting some suitable gift for the great Braves' catcher.

This testimonial is completely controlled by the baseball fans of Boston and New England. It was started because they desired to do something for Gowdy. The American is merely the agency through which their wishes will be gratified. So it is planned to let the fans decide what Gowdy shall receive.

Rally to the support of the Gowdy fund, so you will be able to root all the harder when you journey out to Braves Field to see baseball's great war hero in action

The Dark Star

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Latest and Most Heart Stirring Novels From This Famous Author's Pen

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers

"Oh! no friends, eh? No ladies who wear white serge skirts and white shoes and stockings."

"No, sir, not as I knows of."

"Oh! Suppose you step across to his door, knock, and ask him if he rang. And, if the door is opened, take a quick slant at the room."

"Very good, sir."

Neeland, his door at the crack, watched the steward cross the corridor and knock at the door of Mr. Herbert Hawks.

"Well, what iss it?" came a heavy voice from within.

"Mr. 'Awks, sir; did you ring?"

"No, I did not."

"Oh, beg pardon, sir——"

The steward was starting to return to Neeland, but that young man motioned him violently away from his door and closed it. Then, listening, his ear against the panel, he presently heard a door in the passage creak open a little way, then close again, stealthily.

He possessed his soul in patience, believing that Mr. Hawks or his fair friend in the white skirt had merely taken a preliminary survey of the passage and perhaps also of his closed door. But the vigil was vain; the door did not reopen, no sound came from the stateroom across the passageway.

Watchful Waiting

To make certain that the owner of the white shoes and stockings did not leave that stateroom without his knowledge, he opened his door with many precautions and left it on the crack, stretching the rubber band from knob to bolt, so that the wind from the open port in the passage should not blow it shut. Then, drawing his curtain, he sat down to wait.

He had a book, one of those slobbering American novels which serve up falsehood thickly buttered with righteousness and are consumed by the morally sterilized.

And, as he smoked, he read; and, as he read, he listened. One eye always remained on duty; one ear was alert; he meant to see who was the owner of the white shoes if it took the remainder of the voyage to find out.

The book aided him as a commonplace accompaniment aids a soloist—alternatingly boring and exasperating him.

It was an "uplift" book, where the heroine receives whacks with patient smiles. Fate boots her from pillar to post and she blesses Fate and is much obliged. That most deadly reproach to degenerate human nature—the accidental fact of sex—had been so skillfully extirpated from those pages that, like chaste amoebae, the characters merely multiply by immaculate subdivision; and millions of lineal descendants of the American Dodo were made gleeful for $1.50 net.

It was hard work waiting harder work reading, but between the two and a cigarette now and then Neeland managed to do [illegible] until dinner time [illegible] the corridors resounded with the trample of the hungry.

The stewardess reappeared a little later and returned to him [illegible] handkerchief and the following information:

Mr. Hawks, it appeared, traveled with a trained nurse whose stateroom was on another deck. [illegible] nurse was not in her stateroom, but a similar handkerchief was scented with similar perfume.

"You're a wonder," said Neeland, placing some more sovereigns in her palm and closing her fingers over them. "What is the nurse's name?"

"Miss White."

"Very suitable name. Has she ever before visited Herr—I mean Mr.—Hawks in his stateroom?"

"Her stewardess says she has been indisposed since we left New York."

"Hasn't been out of her cabin?"

"No."

"I see. Did you inquire what she looked like?"

"Her stewardess couldn't be certain. The stateroom was kept dark and the tray containing her meals was left at the bedside. Miss White smokes."

"Yes," said Neeland reflectively, "she smokes Red Light cigarettes, I believe. Thank you, very much. More sovereigns if you are discreet. And say to my steward that I'll dine in my stateroom. Soup, fish, meat, any old thing you can think of. Do you understand?"

"Perfectly, sir."

When she had withdrawn he kneeled down on his sofa and looked out through the port at the sunset sea.

Out of Sight

There was a possibility that Scheherazade and her friends might be on board the Volhynia. Who else would be likely to take wax impressions of his keyhole and leave a scented scrap of a handkerchief on his stateroom floor?

That they had kept themselves not only out of sight, but off the passenger list merely corroborated suspicion. That's what they'd be likely to do.

And now there was no question in his mind of leaving the box in his cabin. He'd cling to it like a good woman to alimony. Death alone could separate his box from him.

As he knelt there, sniffing the salt perfume of the sea, his ears on duty detected the sound of a tray in the corridor.

"Leave it on the camp-table outside my door!" he said over his shoulder.

"Very good, sir."

He was not hungry; he was thinking too hard.

"Confound it," he thought to himself, "am I to squat here in ambush for the rest of the trip?"

The prospect was not agreeable for a man who loved the sea. All day and most of the starry night the hurricane deck called him, and his whole anatomy responded. And now to sit [illegible] up here like a rat in the hold was not to his taste. Suppose he should continue to frequent the deck, carrying with him the box of course. He might never discover who owned the white serge skirt or who owned the voice which pronounced [illegible].

Meanwhile it occurred to him that for a quarter of an hour or more his dinner outside his door had been growing colder and colder. So he slid from the sofa, [illegible] the rubber band, opened the door, lifted table and tray into his stateroom with a [illegible] at the opposite door and [illegible] the rubber band composed himself to eat.

The Rhyming Optimist

THE NEW BONNET

By Aline Michaelis

I'd far rather write a sonnet on some theme elegiac than to praise the new spring bonnet; forty bucks it set me back. I can see no beauty in it as it perches on her head, for I can't forget a minute that [illegible] men, now fled. I would rather be the jailer of two [illegible] my jeans than to own [illegible] color set on forty [illegible] beans. So to me the Spring is gloomy, and there's murder in the air, for I see some hat all bloomy now whichever way I glare. Springtime might have been a season of some [illegible] and bliss, but for lack of other reason for despair some dame brought [illegible]. Long ago she wished it on us [illegible] perhaps in Adam's ear, said "Now Springtime is upon us and I've not a thing to wear." So each woman buys a bonnet made of skeeter-bar and wire, with a jaybird prancing on it or a ribbon pacifier, or a flower listing slightly, or a set of rabbits white—anything, so it's unsightly and the price is out of sight. Then a dress she wants to match it, and a pair of socks and shoes, somehow she will always snatch it, though man needs the dough to use. I have sometimes pondered over plans to sleep through Springtime gay, but I'm sure she would discover where my wallet's hid away. Thus on Sunday she goes faring gayly down the village street, at all other women staring to be sure she has them beat. Yes, an elegy I'm betting I could write in joyous tones if I had some way of getting back again my forty bones.

Hygiene of Workshops

By Brice Belden, M. D.

A workshop to be sanitary should be spacious, attractive and well lighted.

The workers should contribute their part by proper attention to their personal hygiene. They should see to it that their own skins and clothing are clean and their teeth in good condition, since offensive odors may be due to the workers themselves and not to workshops being unsanitary in themselves.

There must be lavatories equipped with sanitary fixtures. Soap and towels should be available for everybody. No towel should be used by more than one person, on account of the easy transmission of disease in this way.

The paper towel does away with the expense of washing, and with that [illegible] to the loss or destruction of linen towels.

The common drinking cup transmits infectious disease very readily. Paper cups should be used in all industrial plants, unless drinking water flows upward from faucets specially designed to do away with all cups.

Skin eruptions should be promptly detected and if found to be infectious treated accordingly.

Old buildings of imperfect construction with defective provision for ventilation and lighting are not fit to work in.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble

Gas and wind in the stomach, accompanied by that full bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of excessive acid indigestion. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive and is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Advertisement.

CHAPTER CXIII.

"Where's Betty?" I echoed—my voice taking on a note of fear from Terry Winston's.

The Canteen was ready to close for the night, and there were not half a dozen persons there—but if there had been a hundred, I'm sure Terry, the reserved, wouldn't have noticed them.

"Yes—where's Betty?" he repeated impatiently. "You saw her. Did she mention her plans?"

"No—not a thing. Who told you I'd seen her?" I asked cautiously, ready in my new-found loyalty to protect Betty even from Terry.

"I met Norreys at the club, and got it out of him that he dined you and Betty last night. Now she's no slacker—Betty—doesn't chuck up her work except for good cause. I didn't like it—directly I heard she was back, I telephoned her place—nothing stirring—called Virginia Dalton—no information—nor yet from the Red Cross. It's a bit thick—and not like Betty."

"O, Terry—there is something! I felt it last night—her eyes, and the way she held her hand to her lips all the time. I said that a friendship was two-sided, and I'd like to help her the way she does me. Then she answered just this, 'Not tonight—soon perhaps, Anne?' O, Terry! what can we do?"

"I don't know," replied Terry half under his breath. "I don't know." Whereupon Carlotta Sturges, whom I had entirely forgotten, stepped into the breach of fear lying between Terry and me.

Carlotta Speaks Out

"It's Mrs. Bryce you are looking for?" she said calmly. "We'll be on her track in a jiffy. You see she lives in one of my father's buildings—and of course the operator at the switchboard will tell me all we care to know. I'll go phone at once."

On the word, Carlotta hurried off in the direction of the telephone booth at the rear of the long room. I noticed that she stopped on the way and spoke to the lieutenant—and suddenly the centre lights switched on again, brightening the shadowy gloom of the Canteen, which had been ready to close for the night when Terry burst into it.

Then "Lootie," as we sometimes disrespectfully called our lieutenant, came over and beckoned me to one side.

"Take your time, Mrs. Harrison—take your time. I'll leave the place in your charge and you put out the lights, lock up and send me the keys by registered mail. That will be all right, as our unit doesn't come on again for three days. Miss Sturges tells me that you have a very important communication for one of the Red Cross workers and want to locate her at once. Hope you get her. Good night."

"Oh, thank you, thank you so much! Good night," I said with more fervor than originality, and returned to Terry.

"We've got to find her!" he declared again, and added: "But there's no use taking the world into it * * * Betty wouldn't like a fuss. I'm glad Miss Sturges put your lieutenant on a false scent. But, it's unfortunate Miss Sturges has taken charge——"

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles, while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Stocks Strong at Midday in a Very Active Market in New York

RAILS ADVANCE TO HIGH FOR YEAR

Texas Land Up 100 Points; Large Gains by Other Specialties

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, after one of the most active morning markets the exchange has known this year, and the upturn, which began with trading, was marked by some sensational advances by specialties. Texas Land climbed 100 points on a few sales to 500. General Cigar Co. gained more than 8 points. Atlantic Gulf sold at the highest record price of 152. Other issues to sell at record highs during the forenoon were Pan-American, Sinclair Oil and Hide & Leather preferred. Oils were higher as a class. Rails became strong and were ususually active, teh law-priced carriers showing the largest gains. Late in the second hour U. S. Steel was up more than a point and at its highest.

LARGEST GAINS AT NOON.

Largest gains at noon included Texas Land, 100 at 500; U. S. Steel, ⅝ at 98⅛, after selling at 98⅜; General Cigar, 4⅝ at 68; Atlantic Gulf, 2⅛ at 151; Cuba Cane Sugar, 1½ at 33⅝; Beet Sugar, 1 at 81½; Chesapeake & Ohio, 1⅜ at 63¾; Canadian Pacific, 2⅛ at 166; Missouri Pacific, 1¾ at 30¾; Pere Marquette, 2¼ at 20⅞; Southern Railway, 1 at 30¼; Haskell and Barker, 2½ at 55½; Mexican Petroleum, 1¼ at 180¼; Texas Co., 1⅛ at 228; Sinclair, 1 at 60⅝; Pan American, 1½ at 86¾; Tobacco Products, 1¼ at 88¾, and United Cigar Stores, 2 at 134.

NOTABLE GAINS IN MORNING.

There was a good outside demand for a number of specialties at the opening, including fertilizers, and first prices ruled higher. Standard stocks were in moderate demand and Steel common began at a slight advance. The undertone was bullish, reflecting belief that the peace treaty will be signed soon and decks cleared for a general trade and industrial revival. Some specialties made notable gains during the first hour, when prices steadily worked upward in very active trading. General Cigar Company advanced more than eight points during the period, and Texas Land 100 points. The latter's initial gain was 51. Rails were strong and after early irregularity oils joined in the upward movement. The price sluggishness of U. S. Steel when the market strengthened was attributed to expectation that its report as to tonnage at the end of April will show unfilled orders totalled less than 5,000,000. This would mean that the corporation had less business on its books than at any time in four years and would justify the conservatism of the directorate in regard to its latest dividend declaration.

FIRM START IN BOSTON.

At the opening the Boston market was firm and later in the morning prices responded to the advance in New York. Trading was unusually active on the local exchange. American Bosch Magneto sold at a record highest price at the outset. Stewart attained its record highest during the forenoon. Issues to sell at their year's highest were Warren Brothers, Swift & Co. and Gorton Pew. Swift International was strong. American Telephone moved up and down in a narrow range, but most of the leaders advanced fractionally. Coppers were lower as a class and inactive also.

Gains in Boston at noon included Warren Brothers common, 4½ at 47, first preferred, 1½ at 72½; Swift & Co., 3 at 147; American Bosch Magneto, 1½ at 84½, its record highest; Gorton Pew, 1¼ at 35; Massachusetts Gas, 1¼ at 78; Punta Alegre, 1¼ at 59⅝; Stewart, ½ at 47⅜, after selling at the record high of 47½, and United Shoe, ½ at 53½.

Isle Royale was off 1 at 25; Old Dominion, 1 at 31, and Calumet & Hecla 10 at 380.

The Haskell and Barker Car Company's 1918 profits were equal to $12.35 on outstanding stock, and on January 31 last net current assets were equal to more than $41 a share. This company has orders for 10,000 cars on its books, involving a gross business of approximately $30,000,000.

APRIL COPPER SALES WERE SMALL

Refinery Yield Was in Excess of the Amount Producers Marketed

The amount of copper sold in April has not been announced, but it is estimated to be much under the March total and, in fact, most of the business last month was very largely confined to deliveries of metals disposed of in the preceding one. March sales aggregated about 75,000 pounds, and it was the largest total for the first quarter.

April copper sales were beyond doubt far below the refinery yield, which amounted to about 120,000,000 pounds. In other words, operations last month only served to an increase in American surplus estimated to be at present between 1,250,000,000 and 1,300,000,000 pounds. It is this increase which is inspiring talk of still further curtailing production and causing consumers to be slow in stocking up with metal even at a time when it is selling below production costs. During April producers took from the government by agreement about 5,000,000 pounds of copper for which they paid the average price for the month. Month by month the government will dispose of its surplus in this manner, and thereby avoid disturbing a market already greatly depressed.

The latest report from New York regarding market conditions is that there is a slightly increased demand for metal and that some small dealers are no longer offering it at 15¼ cents a pound, but are asking 15⅝. Other small interests are holding to the lower figure.

April dividend distributions were by five companies only and totaled $2,664,657, comparing with $4,361,644 distributed by twelve companies in the corresponding 1918 month. How a dearth of demand has affected copper mining shareholders is shown by a table giving the total of payments for the first four months of the past three years as follows:

	9119	1918	1917
January	$7,094,344	$4,808,639	$6,997,184
February	6,915,332	12,323,739	10,716,823
March	8,374,653	22,085,069	27,662,640

TROLLEY LINE COSTS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

For 1918 the operating returns of the electric railways operated in the United States increased but 6.46 per cent. compared with the previous year, while the cost of operating these lines increased 16 per cent. Compared with the corresponding 1917 month, December last costs increased 23 per cent.

When Chairman Ainey of the Public Service Commission addressed the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce on the subject, he said that a rate of fare which seriously interferes with the riding constituency of any company will soon lead to the financial ruin of that corporation.

"When," he said, "the people of Scranton oppose an 5-cent fare, they are apt to point to Philadelphia with a 5-cent rate; when the Pittsburgh company desires a 7-cent fare, it is easy to point to Boston."

INDIA ABSORBING U. S. SILVER DOLLAR SUPPLY

India has always led the world in hoarding silver, and the habit, accentuated by war alarm, is showing greater force now than ever. In four years, according to official figures, it absorbed 1,200,000 silver rupees, representing a total fine content of 404,166,000 silver ounces. This demand used up the world's current production and is depleting its accumulations. The United States is melting silver dollars into bars and shipping the latter to India.

This country has sold Great Britain 250,000,000 ounces of silver, and as domestic industries require a considerable part of the 100,000,000 ounces produced annually in the United States and Canada, it will take several years to complete deliveries. Meanwhile it looks as if the value of silver will go much higher.

Corporation Earnings.

For the 1919 March quarter the New Jersey Zinc Company reports a net income after charges and Federal taxes of $2,170,427, equal to $6.20 a share, against a net income of $2,313,969, or $6.61 a share in the December, 1918, quarter, and $3,603,796, or $10.29 a share in the March, 1918, quarter.

It is understood that American Steel Foundries earned approximately $1,300,000 net after charges and taxes for the first quarter of this year. For the first quarter a year ago net was a trifle over $1,500,000.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co.

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock, payable May 1, 1919, to stockholders of record April 24, 1919.

F. W. BATCHELDER, Secretary.

COTTON OPENED HIGHER IN NEW YORK MARKET

New York, May 2.—The cotton market opened steady today with prices 15 to 27 points higher on the firm cables, Liverpool and trade demand and rebuying by bulls. Trading was not broad, but in the absence of offerings prices worked somewhat higher soon after the start, October selling up to 25.33, or a net advance of 31 points. The South was a moderate seller in the rise.

Opening prices were: May, 28.90; July, 27.10; August, 26.00; October, 25.26; December, 24.70; January, 24.35; March, 24.05.

BANQUET AND OPENING OF HANOVER TRUST CO.

After the successful opening of the Hanover Trust Company's new quarters in the Journal Building, which drew thousands of visitors, the officers of the bank entertained friends of the institution at a banquet at the Georgian. It was one of the most enthusiastic gatherings of the year. Former Congressman W. S. McNary, chairman of the board, presided and among speakers were President C. Stabile, Vice-President Charles S. Baxter, State Treasurer Charles L. Burrill, Bank Commissioner Augustus L. Thorndike and Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, pastor of the St. St. James parish. Father O'Donnell's brief speech was classical, as an expression of American spirit. Secretary James E. O'Connell, paid tribute to the banking genius of Henry H. Chmielinski, treasurer and vice-president of the Hanover Trust. Among the guests were former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry and Treasurer William P. Bailey of the Prudential Trust Company.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR STRUCTURAL STEEL

A little more demand for structural steel is reported, but this is due to prospective building in Chicago, some government work and Mexican orders. Reviewing the trade as a whole, producers are not looking for much improvement for several months. There is no present indication that Washington will accomplish anything toward stabilizing prices. The Railroad Administration is using stocks accumulated during the war and there is no prospect of more than moderate buying from that source, even if the price question is settled.

According to a recent estimate steel mills in this country are now operating at from 25 to 65 per cent. of capacity, with the average for the entire industry not over 48 per cent. Wages of American iron workers are being reduced, while those of British toilers are going up. But American puddlers will be paid $13.30 a ton for this month and June. British puddlers will get $5.10 only.

TREES PLANTED IN HONOR OF ROOSEVELT

Forestry Association President Praises Work of Sharon Church Community

Washington, May 2.—The first memorial trees planted by a Country Church Community Centre were placed today in honor of Theodore Roosevelt at Sharon, Iowa, the American Forestry Association announces. Charles Lathro Pack, president of the Forestry Association, says:

"The Sharon Country Church Community Centre is doing a great work and setting a fine example. We hear a great deal of getting the people back to the land, particularly the soldier. Forward to the land, they should say, and if there were more Sharon community centres they would go in a hurry.

"There is always something going on and something to look forward to at this community centre. They have directors of domestic science, recreation, public information, children's play and in fact nothing that tends to better living conditions is overlooked. Holidays are very special occasions, but they do not wait for holidays at Sharon. The tree planting there is the first of similar plantings all over the country."

U. S. BEEF TRUST MENACES BRITAIN

Industrial Unrest May Result from American Monopoly on Meats

London, May 2.—America's meat trust, holding a club over the British government in its control of food prices, looms up as a menace to the removal of one of the greatest causes of England's industrial unrest, by preventing the lowering of prices. This is the opinion of British government officials and leading food importers here.

Food Controller G. H. Roberts, in answering the popular cry for reduction in price of government controlled food referred to the American monopoly, especially on bacon.

"I fear that the government is in the hands of the American meat trust, and will be obliged to keep up prices," the London Evening News quotes in an interview with a leading importer of provisions.

However, an opposite view here is: "The government is right. We don't know what may happen when the blockade is removed. There is plenty of money among the better-off people in the Central Empires, and we should have them buying against us in America."

There has been a recent slackening in tea—the great English national beverage; but the official answer to any demand for cheaper butter is, "There is a world shortage of butter."

It is admitted by food ministry officials that there are large stocks of bacon in the country, but to put these on the open market, they say, would mean presently Britain would be in the hands of the American exploiter, seeing that America at present is the only bacon-producing country.

THOSE ATTENDING REVIVAL ALSO TAKE IN MOVIES

Medoria, Ill., May 2. — "Movie" shows are just as popular here as revival meetings. And when it comes to choosing between the two the populace wants both. Such was the decision when a picture show and evangelical meeting came to Medoria the same night. The only place to hold the meetings was at the "Opry" house, so it was decided to set the scheduled hour for the revival conclave back thirty minutes in order that the citizens might not be up too late. They also advanced the hour of the picture show meet so the audience sat right through the revival to watch the flickering of the movie film immediately afterward.

Think It Over

Soldiers, Sailors and Marines——

Stop a minute while the American tells you something for your own good. Don't let your War Risk Insurance lapse.

Suppose one of your "pals" was going into battle, but did not wish to bother with a gas mask. You would say to him: "Here, Jim, you take that mask right along with you. What if it is a bother. You may need it and, if you do, you'll need it bad. It is a great protection. It's a good thing. Hang on to it."

Exactly. Your Government Insurance is a "good thing." Hang on to it.

You say: "War's over. What's the use?"

Government says, we say, every thinking person says: "Insurance is protection, war or peace."

During the period of the war the government issued a temporary type of insurance, known as War Risk or Term Insurance. It was designed primarily for protection purposes only, simply to tide the service men over the danger period of the war at the lowest possible price.

This Term Insurance was the best possible temporary insurance the government could arrange. But the government realized that it lacked the elements which alone could make permanency in life insurance desirable. Its cost increases as the years pass.

But the government will announce, on or about July 1, a plan for changing this War Risk or Term Insurance to Permanent Insurance. It will introduce features highly desirable in any form of insurance, but particularly desirable in government insurance.

At this time it is noted that enlisted men, after being mustered out, are allowing their War Risk Insurance policies to lapse by non-payment of premiums.

Just as the government is about to make a "good thing" a "better thing," some of the policyholders are letting their chances slip through their fingers.

Boys, don't let those policies lapse. If you have done so, through misunderstanding or lack of knowledge, you have six months from the date of lapse in which to regain the policy.

Hang on, boys, and wait for Uncle Sam's announcement.

New Waterways Bill

The legislative Committee on Waterways and Terminals has reported the Cole water-power grab bill in a new draft, somewhat more skilfully camouflaged than the original, and displaying a little more adroitness in the use of the entering wedge, but as dangerous and as monopolistic as its predecessor.

In its new form the bill provides, as before, that the mill owners on any stream may form a water-storage corporation by majority vote, forcing in the minority if necessary, and may, then, using the power of eminent domain, if satisfactory terms cannot otherwise be secured, construct storage basins and assess the costs upon the mills in the form of tolls for the use of the stored water which is to be released to equalize the flow during periods of dry weather. It contemplates the creation of reservoirs outside the Commonwealth when permitted by concurrent action of other States, and, in fact, opens the way as fully as the original draft for the establishment, on each of our great river systems, of A GIGANTIC MONOPOLY WHICH WILL CONTROL ALL THE AVAILABLE WATER POWER NOW UNUSED, AND WILL BE ASSURED OF A SUFFICIENT REVENUE BY A GRANT OF THE TAXING POWER OF THE STATE.

It differs from the original draft mainly in omitting the authority to generate electricity from the stored waters, in a pretended safeguard against consolidations with other corporations, and in a plausible but delusive provision for future resumption of the franchises and property by the Commonwealth at cost.

It is difficult to believe that these apparent concessions are offered by the committee in entire good faith. How long, for example—supposing a great storage reservoir to be built without any provision for turning into electricity the energy developed by the stored waters when released to equalize the flow of the stream below—how long would it be before the mills that were being assessed for the cost and maintenance of the reservoir would come to the Legislature with the reasonable demand that electricity be generated and sold to reduce the costs which they were compelled to meet? Nothing can be more certain than that when these storage reservoirs are built, whether by the public, as they should be, or by private monopolists in the old-fashioned way, the water-power at each new dam WILL be turned into electricity, and will NOT be allowed to run to waste as it might have been if the reservoirs had been built before the day of hydro-electricity.

Equally farcical is the section which pretends to provide a safeguard against the control of these new storage corporations by the Edison or other monopolistic combines. Their shares, the new draft declares, SHALL NOT BE ALIENATED except by consent of a supervising State commission, which is presumably to be trusted to forbid the sale of a controlling interest to the Edison company, for instance. But by the terms of the bill THE OWNERS OF THE STORAGE CORPORATION SHARES ARE THEMSELVES CORPORATIONS, AND THERE IS NOTHING AND CAN BE NOTHING TO PREVENT THE EDISON OR ITS SHAREHOLDERS FROM OWNING A CONTROLLING INTEREST IN THESE ALREADY EXISTING CORPORATIONS, AND SO CONTROLLING INDIRECTLY THE STORAGE COMPANY ITSELF.

The power reserved to the Commonwealth to take over the property and franchises of the new companies after ten years is as deceptive and as valueless as the rest. Here is to be created a great system of water-power development having its roots mainly in Nw Hampshire and Vermont, and little but branches in Massachusetts. This Commonwealth cannot give a corporation authority to construct reservoirs in Vermont without Vermont's consent, nor take them away if once constructed, and if our Legislature should revoke such a company's Massachusetts franchise it could still do business in Vermont under a Vermont charter. In any case the taking of a corporation's property and franchise is a costly expedient, never resorted to until long-continued exactions have exhausted the patience of the public. In the present case such a taking would be entirely out of the question. ONCE CREATED THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC MONOPOLY WILL BE AS ENTIRELY BEYOND THE CONTROL OF MASSACHUSETTS AS THE TELEPHONE MONOPOLY, THE COAL TRUST, THE MEAT TRUST, or any other combine whose relations are mainly interstate.

IT IS TO BE HOPED THAT THE OPPONENTS OF THIS MONSTROUS GRAB WILL AT LEAST MUSTER STRENGTH ENOUGH TO SECURE ROLLCALLS IN BOTH BRANCHES OF THE LEGISLATURE. THE PEOPLE SHOULD BE ABLE TO DISTINGUISH THOSE OF THEIR ALLEGED REPRESENTATIVES WHO HAVE THE INTELLIGENCE TO PERCEIVE AND THE INDEPENDENCE TO RESIST THE WILES OF THE CORPORATION LOBBY FROM THOSE WHO HAVE NOT.

More Truth Than Poetry

A SOLDIER'S WOOING

"LIKE ice cream?" said the soldier lad
As he sat in the subway train.
"I'll say I do," said the girl in blue,
And she smiled in his eyes again.

"GOOD game we seen," said the soldier lad,
With a slightly embarrassed air.
"I'll say 'some game,'" said the lovely dame
As she tucked in a strand of hair.

"THEM Sox played good," said the soldier lad
As he shifted uneasy feet.
"I'll say they did," said the charming kid
In a voice that was low and sweet.

"SOME class to this burg," said the soldier lad
After a little wait.
"I'll say 'some class,'" said the sprightly lass
As she settled her hat on straight.

"TRADE me rings?" asked the solder lad
As he glanced at the roof above.
"I'll say I'll trade," said the gentle maid
As she deftly removed a glove.

"MARRY me, kid?" said the soldier lad,
And he gazed at the blushing Jane.
"I'll say I will," I heard her trill
As they changed for another train.

REFRESHING PICTURE OF YOUTH'S GLORY

By Winifred Black

Dear me— what in the world has happened!

It's only three months ago that I kissed the little girl next door good-bye, and when I was over across the water I bought her a gay string of beads and a bright bow of ribbon to tie up her bonny brown hair. I really wanted to buy her a big, blonde doll that wore the most entrancing chiffon boudoir clothes you ever saw, but I was afraid she was a little too old for the doll, so I picked up the other things for her.

For once, I'm glad of it—for the little girl next door isn't a little girl at all any more.

She's grown up—all at once—and I can't believe it even yet.

Or at least I couldn't at first.

She was taller, and her dresses were different, and there was something about her walk and the way she held her head that made me think of an aunt of hers I knew when the aunt was sweet sixteen and the belle of the village—something proud and shy, something sensitive and yet impulsive. I never noticed it before—and now all at once the other evening when I saw her at the party—that did settle it.

It was a very simple little party, just meant for half-grown girls—a party with popcorn and cake and things, and very simple music, and games around the fireside — but there was a little dancing, too.

The Magic Veil

When the boy from across the street—the one in the naval uniform—asked the little girl next door to dance, there it was as plain as print. She wasn't a little girl at all any more, and he wasn't just a good-natured, clumsy, well-meaning boy.

No, there was nothing particular in the way he asked her, nor in the way she said "Yes"—but still —she smiled, and then she blushed, and he smiled and then looked very serious. And down the room they started together — sweet youth, gay youth, youth with a light heart and flying feet, youth with high hope and high resolve.

Youth with true faith and deep, deep longings, dear youth, brave youth—beautiful youth—what is there that is so pathetic about it —so touching to the heart?

Away they went to the lilting tune. Nothing very classic about it—but do you remember your first sweetheart and the first time you danced with her?

It was the "Danube River" then, wasn't it, or perhaps "Daisy Bell"? Have you ever forgotten one single strain of that music?

I have heard great singers in all parts of the world, magnificent music played by splendid orchestras—but oh! the lilt of that old waltz and the throb of the heart that kept time to the beat of my own flying pulse—that was the sweetest music of all!

Send Them Heartsease

They weren't in this world at all, the girl and the boy, when they started down the room to the lilt of the music. They were dancing on the clouds with the stars to light them—they were floating on the waves with the pale moon for mystic company—they were sounding the depths of human suffering and reaching the heights of human joy. And somehow they looked to me and I saw them pass as if some one had thrown over them a magic veil, all sparkling with lovely gems, like the web the spider weaves to catch the shining dew, and there was something about them transfigured and glorified.

Heaven send them heartsease to grow along with them.

The Big Subscription
It Is Small One
All Things Can Be Endured
Bombs Poison Daggers

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.

There is complaint concerning "small" subscriptions to the Victory loan. There is no such thing as SMALL subscription unless it be small in proportion to the subscriber's wealth.

The small subscription, patriotically made, is the BIG subscription. For it means sacrifice and difficult planning, not merely signing a name to a check.

It is to be hoped that this last, BEST loan, will be more conspicuous than any of the others for the number of BIG subscriptions made with SMALL sums of money.

When this loan is over it will be too late to regret not having taken part in the patriotic cleaning-up process.

Men died in millions during the war. Fifty thousand Americans died; other thousands were wounded. The man who makes the big little subscription because he cannot do more is the most important subscriber. His subscription says: "I do not quit in the middle of a race; I do not forget today what I said yesterday. I am not the man to cheer my brother going out to fight and then refuse to pay the bill that represents his safe homecoming."

No matter what others may do, YOU be represented in this loan, able to say and prove that you were there when the race finished.

Seventeen dynamite bombs in one day's mail. Let us hope that it is a passing outburst of the most cowardly kind of murder.

But, even if it became a permanent feature of our "civilization," men would accustom themselves to it. They would include in their annual budget the salary of a professional "bundle opener," whose business it would be to open all bundles and receive all dynamite explosions in return for a good salary and a life, otherwise, free from care.

Men in the past accustomed themselves to such unpleasantness. Every king once, and until yesterday the Sultan of Turkey, paid a "royal taster of food." The business of that servant was to taste all food cooked for the ruler before the latter tried it.

If the professional food taster ate safely, the king ate. If the food taster fell on the floor, writhing, the king ordered something else. Dishes came from the kitchen to the Sultan's table sealed. The food taster had the satisfaction of knowing that if he died the cook would be executed.

In England now, if you dine with the worshipful master of the Fanmakers' Association or at any other official "city" dinner, you observe a curious drinking custom. You stand to drink from the great loving cup of silver filled with strong wine. The man on your left rises and stands behind your back while you drink. It was done by your best friend in old days to make sure that no enemy stabbed you in the back while your eyes were buried in the loving cup. The English, fond of old customs, keep it up, although stabbing in the back is now unusual.

Men get used to everything and adapt themselves to everything. It used to be necessary, frequently, for the responsible editors of Paris newspapers to fight duels and go to jail. The editor usually fought his own duels, but hired a "responsible man" who took the responsibility and went to jail when it was necessary.

Men even got used, in a sort of way, to the atrocities of torture. Thousands of them could not be forced to betray their friends when torn with red hot pincers, stretched on the wheel, or pressed under heavy weights.

In China they get used to capital punishment. If you condemn twenty Chinese to death, they will march out in a row, all kneel down and wait for the headsmen to come and chop their heads off one at a time.

Most remarkable of all, the human race as a whole has accustomed itself to being poor, and worried, worried about the future on this earth, and the future after this earth. It is a patient human race, all except the bomb-building anarchists.

You have heard of the American type. French, German, English and Italian artists draw the type as they imagine it and make it French, German, English or Italian. Their idea of an American is one of their own kind, with the philanthropy and the fat left out and love of money substituted.

For a real American type, get a photograph of Patrick Bellinger, U. S. Navy, who will represent this country in the attempt to be first to cross the ocean, through the air.

There's the face of a man that WILL be first, if the thing is possible; a man who would be good-natured about it if another man beats him.

There are a dozen American types, and Europe, which calls Woodrow Wilson "an icicle," does not really know any of them.
